THE TORCH IS PASSED

Greyhound's Last Hurrah: Few Showed

By JEFF GREER
Greyhound's San Rafael bus depot was a deserted scene this morning, as only a handful of passengers rode the firm's final commute runs to San Francisco.

"I usually have at least 53 passengers," driver Helen Draghi said as she surveyed the seven passengers on her W route bus, preparing to leave at 7:09 a.m.

Her bus's load was so small because of the long New Year's weekend, which closed many offices throughout the Bay Area today.

The passengers who were riding to work weren't entirely happy with the idea of switching to the new Golden Gate Bridge District bus fleet on Monday.

"I don't like it. Greyhound is very convenient, it's been very satisfactory," passenger Richard Norton of San Rafael said.

Mrs. Draghi, who has been driving for Greyhound for 28 years, will be changing uniforms and uses on Monday. She will drive an intracounty bus for the Golden Gate district in the morning, beginning in the San Marin area of Novato, winding southward with a side jaunt to Peacock Gap before going to Ross Valley. In the afternoon, she will take a bus to San Francisco, to bring the first day's commuters home.

She has not run one of the district's new, air-conditioned buses yet, but said they are similar to other buses she has driven for Greyhound.

As Mrs. Draghi's bus departed, another W bus wheeled in, to stand beside the depot door. It, too, departed with only a handful of passengers. One of them was Cleo de La Montanya of San Rafael.

"I don't know" about the changeover, she reported dubiously. Another woman, who declined to give her name, also said, "I can't tell" about the new service. "It could be better, but Greyhound has been all right."

Commuter Francis Callon of San Rafael was much more positive as he adjusted his topcoat and settled a briefcase in his lap.

"I'm just delighted," he declared. "I've been wanting this for a long time."

Inside the terminal, ticket agent Lurene Richardson had little to keep her occupied. Mostly, she directed inquiring commuters to the deserted counter where Marinets only the day before had gobbled pastries and coffee before heading for the city. Now its top was strewn with stacks of new schedules for the bridge district buses.

Greyhound driver Joseph Bridges of San Rafael stood nearby, chatting with the few commuters. Several were worried that the new runs would encounter "every stop light" in San Francisco due to changed routes there.

"I was a driver when we used to go through the old produce district, before they moved the terminal" for commuters to the Ferry Building, Bridges reported. "We used to have an awful time getting past the trucks." The old fruit and vegetable warehouses have moved elsewhere, but stoplights have sprouted on every intersection along the Golden Gate bus routes, he agreed with commuters.

Elmer McVerry, superintendent of Greyhound's Marin County operations, stood by to watch the commute buses leave before going to his own office in San Francisco. He said most of the empty buses would remain in the line's yards in the city.

LAST DAY — A handful of passengers huddles in the gloom of a nearly empty Greyhound bus on the last day of the line's commute runs from San Rafael to San Francisco. Most riders said they "didn't know" whether they would find riding with the Golden Gate Bridge District's new commute buses any better when they make the changeover Monday. This 7 a.m. bus normally is full, but today was a holiday for many San Francisco offices.

Some Grumbling, But Stores Will Post Price Lists

Ruling Is Source Of Confusion To Merchants, Internal Revenue

By DAVID DIETZ

Marin and Southern Sonoma shoppers can expect to find newly posted base price lists in stores which remain open this holiday weekend.

The lists were ordered a month ago by the federal Price Commission as part of the second phase of the government's new economic program. According to the ruling, the lists had to be posted by Jan. 1.

Those big and small stores questioned by the Independent-Journal yesterday said they will comply with the directive, although spokesmen for several of the small retailers said they would do so reluctantly.

Meanwhile, the ruling was a source of some confusion at the local office of the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS has been designated as an enforcement agent and information center in the Economic Stabilization Program authored by the Nixon Administration.

Robert Yakerson, representative of the district IRS director, said he had been told by stabilization program officials in San Francisco that stores need post only signs announcing the availability of price lists.

But Stuart Patt, public information officer for the IRS in San Francisco, confirmed the month-old Price Commission ruling that the lists themselves must be posted.

The directive says that retailers with sales under $100,000 annually must place in a prominent spot the base price of the 40 items that had the largest dollar sales volume during the previous year, or of items that accounted for at least 50 per cent of total sales that year, whichever is less.

The base price is the one in effect when the 90-day wage-price freeze began in August.

Stores with sales of more than $100,000, the ruling says further, must post prices of the 40 items in each department with the highest sales volume, or of items that accounted for at least half of total dollar sales in each department.

The Price Commission previously had said the lists had to be available upon customer request. But, said Patt, "I must admit that compliance was not what we would have liked it to be."

Base prices are intended only as a customer guide, since many retailers have received approval from the Price Commission to boost prices beyond this limit. But the government reminds customers that if the price increase on an item exceeds 2.5 per cent — the loosely set maximum for wage and price boosts — they should ask the retailer for the new ceiling price.

Officials of three major department stores in Marin — the Emporium, Macy's and J. C. Penney's, all in San Rafael — said they already have provided price lists at various central locations.

Daniel Knott, store manager of Penney's, said the directive was "not unreasonable at all." He added that he was unaware of any customer requests for base price information to date.

Guido Bisazza, owner of the Big G Supermarket in Sausalito, said a book of prices would be kept near the check-out counters. "The only thing we're concerned about is losing the thing," he said. "It took a week to make it."

Small retailers were grumbling over the ruling.

"I'll do the best I can," said Henry Muller, owner of Kentfield Hardware, "but it's an impossibility."

"I guess I'll start Monday," said Bob Elrod, manager of the 7-11 Store on Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley, "but I think it will prove kind of a hassle. If you leave the list out for the customers, they get upset looking for the prices."

Cliff Chiaroni, owner of Charlie's Market in San Rafael, said the directive was "kind of a farce" because "the things you have posted probably aren't the ones the customers want."

Yakerson, the IRS official in San Rafael, said his office would conduct compliance checks, backed by an investigative force from San Francisco.

Stores will be warned if customers complain to the IRS. That failing, owners would be subject to a fine of up to $5,000.

New Year's Battle Lull In Indochina

SAIGON (UPI)—A lull in the fighting settled over Indochina battlefields today as both allied forces and Communists observed New Year truces. Initial reports from pilots who flew bombing raids in North Vietnam for five days indicated 11 military sites were damaged or destroyed.

The Viet Cong today promised heavy fighting in the days to come in retaliation for the American air raids on North Vietnam.

"The South Vietnamese people are determined to give back appropriate punishment for the criminal action by the American aggressors against the North Vietnamese people," the Viet Cong's provisional government said in a broadcast over Radio Hanoi. "The South Vietnamese people are determined to pour the storm and fire of hatred on the American aggressors and their henchmen."

On the truce front, South Vietnamese spokesmen reported only one violation by the guerrillas of their unilateral truce that went into effect at 1 a.m. today (2 p.m. EST Thursday). They said Communists shelled and attacked the village of Komrong in the Central Highlands, 300 miles north of Saigon seven hours after the truce went into effect, killing one militiaman.

The Viet Cong truce runs for three days, through early Monday morning in Saigon. An overlapping 24-hour cease-fire ordered by President Nguyen Van Thieu began at 6 p.m. (5 a.m. EST) today.

U.S. command spokesmen in Saigon said weather over North Vietnam was hampering picture-taking flights by the U.S. reconnaissance planes assessing damage done in more than 1,000 air strikes in five days of bombing along the border with Laos.

They said late reports from pilots who participated in the raids indicated 11 missile, anti-aircraft and radar sites along the border in North Vietnam were damaged or destroyed in the raids, however.

Military sources said heavy clouds and rainstorms over the North Vietnamese panhandle were hindering the photo planes and declined comment on damage caused during the heaviest bombing raids on the North since 1968.

Although the U.S. command declined comment, officers were mixed in their opinions as to whether the more than 1,000 F4 Phantom bombing strikes from Sunday to Thursday were effective. The weather was bad for much of the raids.

"As far as we can tell, the bombing was a real failure," said one pilot who flew the raids. "We hit very little."

But higher-ranking officers said the bombing campaign was obviously a success. They told of fuel dumps, ammunition stockpiles and at least one seaport left in flames.

"A damage assessment review is in progress," a spokesman said. "When information becomes available, additional details will be provided."

The U.S. command acknowledged the loss of three planes in five crewmen were missing North Vietnam claimed it downed 19 U.S. aircraft.

The more than 120 U.S. planes that pounded North Vietnam for five days returned to strikes in Laos today, hitting the Ho Chi Minh Trail and flying missions in support of beleaguered Laotian and Thai troops.

Reports from UPI correspondent Pon Chantaraz in Vientiane, Laos, said North Vietnamese forces had moved in behind the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) base at Long Cheng at the edge of the Plain Of Jars and were in a position to attack the base from both north and south.

Communiques from Phnom Penh said a guerrilla attempt to blow up a Cambodian government finance ministry banquet was foiled Thursday night when the guerrilla killed himself on being discovered assembling explosives.

In another incident in Phnom Penh, a government secretary was injured in the explosion in a toilet on the second floor of the finance ministry.

Hanoi Claims 20 Jets Downed, Names 3 Captured U.S. Fliers

SAIGON (UPI)—Radio Hanoi said today it captured three pilots during the five days of U.S. raids on North Vietnam and it gave their names.

The radio also claimed 20 planes also claimed 20 planes, were shot down. The U.S. command in Saigon admits to three.

The three pilots named in the broadcast came from two of the three planes the U.S. command admits having lost.

The Radio Hanoi broadcast, monitored in Saigon, said it captured two Navy men shot down Thursday (the U.S. command admits to two Navy planes lost Thursday) and one Air Force plane lost Sunday. (The command admits to an Air Force Phantom F4 lost Sunday.)

The broadcast said the two pilots shot down Thursday appeared at a Foreign Ministry press conference in Hanoi today and a third, shot down Sunday, is in the hospital.

The broadcast said the two men shot down Thursday were Navy "major" (apparently lieutenant commander) David Presley Hauffmann, "from California," serial No. 659133, and "Navy first lieutenant" (apparently Lt. Jg) Norris Alfonso Charles, also from California, serial 755256.

It identified the man in the hospital as Air Force Capt. Lean Allis Walter, from a place identified only as "Ugan," serial No. 3234269FV.

It said their birth dates were: Hauffmann March 1, 1941; Charles, Aug. 4, 1945; and Walter, Dec. 30, 1945.

It gave no quotes from the men listed as captured. It said

Fire Guts Plant

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Certified Linen Co. plant was gutted by fire Thursday night. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

Thieu Attends Mass In Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu attended the annual New Year's eve peace mass today at Our Lady Queen of Peace Basilica in downtown Saigon.

Thieu was accompanied by Vice President Tran Van Huong, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker also attended.

The Pope's annual message for peace and justice worldwide was read during the mass, celebrated by Msgr. Nguyen Van Binh, archbishop of Saigon.

HAPPY AT CHANGE — Francis Callon of San Rafael steps aboard a Greyhound on its last trip to the city. "I'm delighted" at the change in buses with the new year, he declared.

The parking lots full of buses that used to stay overnight at Manor, Novato, San Rafael and near Richardson Bay will be empty tonight.

Greyhound was to put on only as many buses as needed for the evening runs back to Marin. The last commute buses will leave the Ferry Building at 6 p.m., McVerry said.

On Monday he will switch employers, taking a similar post with the Golden Gate bus operation.

"The shooting's all over," McVerry declared at 7:30 a.m. as he surveyed the deserted depot.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Dowdy Guilty

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The jury that convicted Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., of accepting a $25,000 bribe thought the evidence weighed against him overwhelmingly from the very start of the trial, its members said Thursday following the verdict.

The jury of nine women and three men deliberated 15 hours, but several jurors said separately that most of their discussion was on technicalities, and basic agreement was reached quickly that the verdict would have to be guilty on some of the counts.

Dowdy, 59, was found guilty on eight counts of bribery, conspiracy and perjury, in connection with a $25,000 payment to influence a Justice Department fraud investigation of a Washington, D.C., home improvement firm.

VVAW Petition

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In an unprecedented action, the president of the Security Council left U.N. headquarters Thursday and accepted a petition from Vietnam Veterans Against the War — the group which recently occupied the Statue of Liberty.

Ismael Byne Taylor-Kamara of Sierra Leone, in an apparent move to avoid a confrontation with the 70 veterans, left the U.N. enclave and walked across the street where the veterans handed him a petition addressed to him and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

In their petition, the veterans asked the Security Council to tell the U.S. government to end all hostilities in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos; to set a date for withdrawal of all troops in the immediate future; and to "commence immediate negotiations in earnest" with the Hanoi delegation at the Paris peace talks.

Two Youths Safe

MOUNT SHASTA (UPI) — Two plucky teen-age Eagle Scouts hiked frostbitten and hungry off Mt. Shasta Thursday after spending 12 days in blizzards and sub-zero temperatures.

"I'm glad we made it down. It would have been embarrassing if we had to be rescued," said Vern Clevering of Oakland. The two 16-year-old campers were found trudging along a logging road by a construction firm foreman one day after they ran out of emergency rations.

They were driven to the filming location of "Climb An Angry Mountain" where they lunched with actor Fess Parker, Parker then drove Clevering and Bill Dougherty of Berkeley to a clinic in nearby McCloud for treatment.

Frazier Talks

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — John Linley Frazier said yesterday he regretted the Santa Cruz mansion slayings of five persons "very much" but that it would take "thousands of words" to explain them.

Frazier, looking at his manacled hands, answered reporters questions while being led from his last courtroom appearance to San Quentin's death row, where he became the 99th occupant today.

After being formally sentenced to death in a courtroom crowded with long-haired young people who called the judge a "creep," Frazier was asked if he regretted the killings.

"Yeah, very much," he said slowly.

The 25-year-old former mechanic and high school dropout was asked if he could explain his actions.

"To answer that would take thousands of words and I don't have that much time," he replied.

"Do you believe you are insane?" he was asked.

"Compared to your established standards, yeah," he said.

Peabody In Running

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Former Gov. Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts declared Thursday he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for vice president in the 1972 election.

Arriving here with his wife and several aides to pick up the nominating petitions to enter New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary March 7, Peabody said he had made his decision Wednesday.

Ellsberg 'Unaware'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, indicted anew by a federal grand jury in connection with the Pentagon Papers he has acknowledged leaking to the press, said yesterday he was "not aware of violating any criminal statute."

"I can't regret having done my duty as a citizen," Ellsberg told a news conference shortly after the new indictments were returned in Los Angeles. During the news conference, he held hands with his wife Patricia.

Yesterday's 12-count indictment was more severe, charging him with conspiracy, theft of government property and violation of espionage laws.

Anthony J. Russo, who also was named in yesterday's indictment and has spent 47 days in jail on contempt charges for refusing to testify before the grand jury, actually had volunteered to testify in public, but not in a closed-door session, Ellsberg said.

Jets For Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials said today that the U.S. next month will permit Israel to begin buying on extremely easy terms some of the additional F4 Phantom jet warplanes the Israeli government has been requesting urgently during the past year.

In return, officials indicated, Israel has agreed to modify to some extent its conditions for beginning negotiations with Egypt on an interim agreement to permit reopening of the Suez Canal.

This would involve some pull-back from the canal bank by Israeli forces, U.S. officials said.

Violence Lessens

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Below-freezing temperatures cut violence in Northern Ireland to a minimum today, the army said.

An army spokesman said the night passed almost free of the gunfire and bombings which have claimed 206 lives in the British province in two years of bloodshed.

Hope Hopeful

VAN NUYS (UPI) — Bob Hope conceded Thursday that his proposal to free American prisoners held in North Vietnam was "a long-shot," but said there was still a chance it would be accepted.

"My offer hasn't been turned down yet and I'm not giving up hope," he said on his return to an airport here from his annual Christmas tour of American military bases overseas.

"We haven't had an official turnaround from the North Vietnamese yet. It's a long shot, but we're not giving up," Hope said.

'India Wants Peace'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said today India wants to live in peace with Pakistan but that the Moslem country must face the reality of an independent Bangladesh in place of Pakistan's onetime eastern wing.

Mrs. Gandhi spoke at a news conference only hours after President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan said he was willing to begin a dialogue with India immediately if India recognized what he termed a united Pakistan.

"We do recognize Pakistan," Mrs. Gandhi said. "But we also recognize Bangladesh ... Now the reality is that a new state has come into being."

War Danger

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL Prime Minister Golda Meir said today Israel's Arab neighbors are not ready to talk peace and the danger of war still exists in the Middle East.

As she spoke, Israeli warplanes for the second time in one day swept over Jordan.

Speaking at a ceremony where Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev handed over his command as chief of staff of Israel's armed forces to Lt. Gen. David Dado Elazar, Mrs. Meir said:

"It is not sure that the present cease-fire will be unlimited or will be continued."

'POW' Christmas

SAIGON (UPI) — Men identifying themselves as American prisoners of the Viet Cong said today they "will always remember and cherish" their Christmases in Communist prison camps.

A broadcast monitored in Saigon from the Viet Cong's Radio Liberation spoke of turkey dinners, Christmas decorations and "preparing a Christmas play."

A chorus of about six or eight Americans sang seven Christmas carols during the half-hour program.

Publishing Halt

SAIGON (UPI) — Most of Saigon's daily newspapers will stop publishing for three days beginning Saturday to fight a "substantial" government increase in the price of newsprint.

The government imports all the newsprint in Vietnam and sells it to the publishers. The current price is about $4 a ream. The government wants to raise the price to $6 a ream.

Remapping Measures Are Vetoed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Reapportionment of California's state Senate, Assembly and congressional districts was up in the air today after Gov. Ronald Reagan, surprising no one, vetoed all three redistricting bills passed by a Democrat-dominated legislature.

"I would be derelict in my responsibility as governor to sign these bills into law," Reagan told a news conference at the Century Plaza Hotel here sandwiched in the middle of his holiday "working vacation" at his Pacific Palisades home.

Using maps and charts, Reagan pointed out the oddly shaped "tortuous boundary lines around artificial and bizarre shaped districts, aimed solely at perpetuating themselves in office."

"The Democrats made no secret of the fact that their bills were totally partisan—and therefore unfair to their Republican colleagues," Reagan said.

The flaws in the proposed remap included inequality of population in the districts, lack of geographical compactness, lack of effective representation for every voter, difficulty of access to all parts of the district, and division of community interests, Reagan said.

"These bills did such odd and insupportable things as placing the same people in two different districts at the same time through overlapping boundaries, he said.

He said the 69th district, currently wholly within Orange County and now represented by Assembly Democratic Caucus Chairman Kenneth Cory, had been gerrymandered to include every available Democrat in at least a dozen cities in Orange and Los Angeles Counties.

"This shows how you find Democrats in Orange County," Reagan said, dubbing the district a "Cory-dor."

He said some areas were joined together to form one district by a connecting corridor sometimes only as wide as a freeway.

Reagan voiced hope that the five-man Reapportionment Commission, headed by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and dominated three-to-two by the GOP, would continue its studies and declared that "Our goal is still a fair reapportionment—something California has not had for many years."

He also indicated it was possible the legislature might still act to resolve the issue.

Nobody expected, however, that the legislature would override Reagan's vetoes, because to do so the Democrats would need heavy Republican support to obtain the two-third majority vote needed.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democratic member of the Reapportionment Commission, already asked the state Supreme Court to step in to decide who will reapportion the state—a task made necessary by population shifts in the past 10 years.

Reagan About-Face In Fund Veto Flap

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has decided to sponsor a bill in the 1972 legislature to restore $1.2 million he vetoed from the state budget for the support of services for crippled children.

Top administration officials said the measure will be introduced as "urgency" legislation by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, who came within three Assembly votes of overriding the governor.

Four days after the override failed, Reagan agreed a deficit existed in the crippled children's program. He directed the Human Relations Agency and the state Department of Public Health to determine its size and move previously budgeted funds ahead to plug the gap.

Acting Public Health Director William J. Kurtz and Assistant Human Relations Secretary Alex Cunningham Thursday fixed the budget shortage at $1.2 million, and reported the emergency appropriation bill will be carried by Crown on behalf of the administration.

As an urgency measure, it is expected to be expedited through the legislative process and take effect immediately upon signature of Reagan. In the meantime, Kurtz has assured counties that crippled children funds will be available "and they can proceed with their treatment plans."

Bill Rejections: A Reagan Record

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has set a personal record for bills vetoed in one year by rejecting 14 more measures, including one which would have established an "all-star" presidential primary in California.

The latest vetoes brought to 157 the number of bills Reagan has vetoed this year. The all-time record is held by Hiram Johnson who vetoed 431 bills in 1913.

Reagan's veto Thursday of the "all-star" primary bill by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, was the third straight time he has rejected the bill in as many years.

The governor's office said Thursday's list would probably be the last of the year, barring unforeseen circumstances.

Monday, the legislature will meet in a brief special session to consider overriding the governor's vetoes. But no legislature has overridden a veto since 1946, and this year is not expected to be any exception.

Under the all-star primary bill, the secretary of state would have put the names of all "nationally-recognized" candidates on the ballot. If a contender objected to having his name listed, he could withdraw by filing an affidavit that he was not a candidate.

This would have abolished the protection enjoyed by favorite son candidates who can virtually freeze out all opposition candidates from their party.

Reagan also vetoed these bills: Train—By Belenson, to require legislative approval before construction of a proposed high speed Los Angeles Railroad. Reagan said he was opposed to involvement in the decision by state government because his administration is "dedicated to the concept of encouraging the development of balanced transportation systems through decisions made at the local level."

Snowmobiles—By Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, to increase the snowmobile registration fee by $1 and establish noise limits for the vehicles. Reagan noted he already has signed legislation regulating snowmobiles and other off-road vehicles.

Ballot — By Assemblyman Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, to permit voters to send in absentee ballots up to the time the polls close, instead of the current deadline of 5 p.m. the previous day, and requiring absentee ballots to be mailed with the ballot pamphlets. Reagan said mailing the absentee ballots to all voters would be too large a "burden" for local governments and that some large counties already do it without being ordered to by the state.

Schools — By Assemblyman Leon Ralph, D-Los Angeles, requiring the state to authorize six pilot projects in selected school districts where "schoolcommunity councils" would be tried. Reagan said he was not opposed to "meaningful parent participation in the educational process," but that it would be "contrary to this administration's policy of local control of schools" to mandate the councils at the state level.

Welfare — By Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, requiring the state to "maximize" federal financial participation in certain welfare programs and prescribing who shall receive certain services. Reagan said the bill would "mandate child care welfare services for large numbers of people who are not now welfare recipients and could not qualify for welfare grants."

Election—By Waxman, specifies that the secretary of state is the chief elections officer and repeals certain deadlines for county clerks to provide voter information while allowing the secretary of state to establish new deadlines. Reagan said the bill would have resulted in "needless confusion and unnecessary delays."

Probation—By Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, to establish a four-year test of a new probation subsidy program, with the state required to pay $4,000 annually to the county for each person in the probation program. Reagan said the concept needed "serious evaluation" and the bill was therefore premature. He also said the estimated cost to the state of $1.9 million per year was "prohibitive."

Training—By Ralph, requiring the state to establish standards for child care centers in the community colleges which would have been used for on-the-job training. Reagan said the bill would re-establish laboratory classrooms in the colleges which were deleted from the budget by the legislature and would have put the colleges into the type of research that should be done only by the University of California.

Classes — By Assemblyman Eugene Chappie, R-Cool, would have required the state to pay additional support for classes for problem students operated by county superintendents of schools. Reagan said his administration and the legislative analyst both feel that such classes should not be operated by the county superintendents and the bill would "proliferate" them.

Madera—By Way, to allow the parts of the State Center Community College District which are in Madera County to join another district. Reagan said the bill would exempt the Madera territory from a recently enacted law which sets up an "orderly process" for such transfers. He also said it would bypass the local school board and the Community College Board of Governors.

Michigan's Band Cancels Protest

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The University of Michigan marching band has canceled its protest of the political tensions afflicting the Rose Bowl today, but other students announced plans for protest demonstrations.

The band voted unanimously Thursday not to stage the anti-war demonstration at halftime Saturday that was to be the subject of a court fight today.

By a vote of 215-0, band members voted to ignore the resolution of the university's student government council, which asked them to stage in the Rose Bowl the pageant seen at Michigan's homecoming game this year.

The performance was opposed by Rose Bowl officials and forbidden by university administrators.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) filed suit against the school administration on behalf of the student government, charging the university officials with violating constitutional free speech guarantees.

A hearing on the suit was scheduled for today.

The antiwar pageant featured the band playing taps while the audience stood in silence and Vietnam veterans released black balloons symbolizing Asian and American war dead. A statement by the student government council calling on President Nixon to withdraw all American forces was to be read.

David Heroy, a section leader of the band, said the prevailing thought among band members in rejecting the antiwar pageant was that the group already has performed three such shows in the past two years, including an appearance in the 1970 Rose Bowl.

"We really felt that the band is already on record as to what it stands for," said the junior from Adrian, Mich. He added that the student council had failed to consult band members before initiating the suit.

There was no immediate word from the ACLU or student government leaders as to whether they would proceed with the legal action in view of the band members' stand.

The band's planned performance is entitled "Every Living Thing" and is a broad, upbeat statement on the condition of the world's diversified creatures, according to band members.

Although there apparently will be no antiwar demonstration by the Michigan band, protests by other groups have been announced.

The student body presidents of both Stanford University and Michigan said a coalition of student and antiwar groups plan to demonstrate at the Tournament of Roses parade and possibly the game.

Among the groups said to be included are the Vietnam Veterans against the War and the Free Angela Davis Committee from Southern California.

Spokesmen for the groups said the demonstrations would last all day and would include marching, chanting and distribution of leaflets.

San Quentin Theatrical Treat Set

San Quentin Prison inmates will be treated to a five-hour theatrical extravaganza tomorrow.

This 57th annual New Years show will start at 10 a.m. and run continuously until 3 p.m. according to J. R. O'Brien, information officer. It will be held in the prison dining room.

Entertainers scheduled include: Eddie Fisher, now appearing in the Venetian Room at the Fairmont Hotel; Carmen McCrae, singer; Conley Hall and the Jazz Representatives; The Whittington Sisters, singers; Ted Qualls, dancer; Milly Foster, singer formerly at Club Gi Gi; Howard Eubanks, comedian; Ford and Williams, comedians and dancers who have appeared in previous shows; Yukiko, singer, and The Sinaloa Club, brought by Dino Benetti.

Other acts may be arranged before the show, O'Brien said.

Billy Grant and Jimmy Jamerson will be masters of ceremonies. Bud Moore and William Sutherland are producers, with Phillip Bovero assisting. Albert Arnold is in charge of the music and Edward C. Powell is in charge of the sound effects.

The show started in 1914 and has been an annual feature with Bay Area entertainers donating their time, O'Brien said.

Possible Bridge Leaper Seized

A Pacifica man who arrived at the Golden Gate Bridge by taxi yesterday was taken to a San Francisco hospital after he told California Highway Patrol officers he had intended to jump from the span.

Highway patrolmen said James Arthur Black, 44, got out of a cab at 6:40 p.m. near the bridge's toll plaza. Officers stopped him as he approached the east walkway of the bridge and asked him what he was doing.

He said he was receiving medical treatment for cancer, according to officers, and had decided to take his life.

Patrolmen took him to Mount Zion Hospital for observation.

RICHARD M. SIMS III
Ex-Marinite is sheriff's aide

Ex-Marinite Appointed By Hongisto

I-J Special Report
SAN FRANCISCO — Richard M. Sims III, former Marin County resident and now a San Francisco attorney, was appointed yesterday as attorney for the sheriff's office by Sheriff-elect Richard Hongisto.

Sims, 28, is the son of Justice Richard M. Sims Jr. of the State Court of Appeal. He will replace defeated sheriff Matthew Carberry's attorney, James Purcell. Sims' salary will be $15,900 per year.

Sims was reared in Marin County and graduated from Redwood High School. He was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout while a student at Redwood. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School in Cambridge, Mass.

After graduation, he worked as a volunteer for Vista, the domestic peace corps. He lived and worked in the south of Market area among the skid row derelicts, the elderly and others. He joined the San Francisco Crime Committee in 1970 as assistant executive director. He will lease this position to become the full-time attorney for the sheriff.

Greenbrae Proposal Due Study

A proposed county service area to include parts of Greenbrae within Larkspur City limits will again be considered by the Larkspur City Council, meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The service area proposal, tabled two weeks ago by the council, would establish a special taxing district for street landscape maintenance in both incorporated and unincorporated sections of Greenbrae.

Both city and county approval is needed to form the service area, which would take over maintenance responsibility from the Greenbrae Property Owners Association.

In tabling the matter, the council called for a 10-week "cooling off period" so opposing community groups could work out differences over the proposal.

However, county supervisors, who considered the matter Tuesday, said the "cooling off period" could not extend past Jan. 25 due to legal technicalities.

The service area — like others in the county — would have a five-member advisory board made up of Greenbrae residents. They would be appointed by supervisors based on recommendations from the community and would recommend a tax rate based on the level of maintenance desired in the community.

The property owners association has said it can no longer handle the job because of the administrative workload and lack of funds.

Legislators' Average Spending: $28,800

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The average California legislator tapped the public for $28,870 in salaries and expenses during the record-length 1971 session.

Marin's Assemblyman, William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, drew $30,420 as compared to the $29,100 Assembly average, and the county's senator, Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, drew $27,880 compared to the $28,300 Senate average.

The total for all legislators — the highest paid in the nation — was about $3.4 million, compared to $2.5 million in 1970.

State records disclosed Thursday that Republican Assemblyman Charles Conrad of Sherman Oaks was the top money drawer with $34,084.

Democratic Sen. Albert Roda received the least — only $26,470. He is one of a handful of lawmakers who will accept only $25 a day for expenses instead of the usual $30.

In addition to the length of the session, which stretched into the predawn hours of Dec. 20, the $5 boost in daily, tax-free expense pay and the salary increase from $16,000 in 1970 to $19,200 helped make the 1971 session the costliest ever.

The $30 is given to lawmakers on top of their salaries each day during the session or when they are excused on legislative business.

Legislators are also compensated for trips related to legislative business.

Here is the list of salaries and expenses paid to California legislators in 1971.

The Assembly
Arnett $27,148, Badham $29,400, Bagley $30,420, Barnes $27,365, Bee $33,695, Belotti $28,128, Beverly $30,670, Biddle $27,850, Brathwaite $28,196, Briggs $31,008, Brophy $2,600, Brown $29,642, Burke $28,160, Burton $31,177, Campbell $28,565, Chacon $28,332, Chappie $29,592, Cline $28,756, Collier $28,372, Conrad $34,084, Cory $29,614, Crown $27,814, Cullen $33,608, Davis $28,146,

WORD-A-DAY

Firm Loses Appeal For Dust Permit

I-J Special Report
SAN FRANCISCO — The Hein Brothers Basalt Rock Co. of Petaluma yesterday lost its bid for a variance to allow emission of gravel dust from its plant.

The hearing board of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, however, made its denial "without prejudice." This allows the company to reapply for a variance — if it can come up with a plan to control the dust.

The board's order cautioned that such a plan, if resubmitted to the district, also must provide a schedule for installing whatever new controls would be necessary.

The district's attorney, Matthew S. Walker, had recommended last week when the board heard the variance application that it be denied.

Melvin Hein, vice president of the company, testified before the hearing board that the mill can produce 1,000 tons of gravel a day with the dry process, but only 700 tons a day by wetting down the material that comes in from the quarry. Walker suggested he find a way to control the dust or use the wet process all the time.

Hein has estimated that control would cost some $50,000, a cost that could force closure of the plant. The company has been in Petaluma since 1925, and has 23 persons on its payroll.

Southern Sonoma was annexed to the district this year.

Mill Valley Council To Consider Pay

An ordinance which would establish monthly city council salaries of $150 per councilman will be up for adoption by the Mill Valley City Council when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

The council also will consider plans for increasing city hall office space, as well as appointments to the Mill Valley planning commission, Marin County Mosquito Abatement Control Board, human rights mini-board and appointment of a liaison between the council and the Marin County Housing Authority.

Postman Hit For Moralizing
HOUSTON (UPI)—A postman who complained to a newspaper that the Playboy magazine he delivered monthly to the home of the school superintendent was a sign the school official was not morally upright has been demoted to postal clerk.

"He's not handling mail and won't handle mail at any time," postmaster George Poitevent said Tuesday in formally reprimanding former letter carrier Leslie McLean. McLean was given a job as a clerk in the vehicle maintenance department.

He and his wife wrote letters to the editor criticizing former Superintendent George C. Garver for subscribing to Playboy, which they called "filthy."

Western Show Actor Found Shot Dead
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Pete Duel, a star in the television series "Alias Smith and Jones," was found shot to death early today outside his Hollywood Hills home. Police listed the death a possible homicide.

The 31-year-old performer was found slumped in a small parked car by a neighbor, police said. He was shot in the head.

Soviet Blast
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Atomic Energy Commission said it picked up signals Thursday indicating a Soviet underground nuclear explosion in the Semipalatinsk area equivalent to an underground nuclear explosion in the yield range of 20 to 200 kilotons (20,000 to 200,000 tons) of TNT.

Unfinished Business Remains In Area Of Women's Rights

Some Legislation Stalled By Unfriendly Politicians

(Editor's note: this is the second of two articles on the women's equality movement in 1971.)

By BARBARA HOSMER

Women's rights issues made some gains in 1971, but others failed to muster enough support and were voted down or vetoed.

Many of the legal complaints and women's special interest issues, such as the Equal Rights Amendment, are still unfinished business for '72, but women in most walks of life began to have their "consciousness raised" about their status in American life.

Women got together to form women's caucuses within political groups, professional societies, colleges and universities and governmental associations. One such was a still-forming women's group within the League of California Cities involving Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam, Tiburon Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood and Mill Valley Councilman Jean S. Barnard.

In July some top talent among women's leaders launched the National Women's Political Caucus, an independent coalition group, and its fresh new approach created excitement among previously uninvolved women. Spin-off caucuses have been held in many states as women sought common ground from a spectrum of political beliefs.

THE IDEA was to urge women to champion their own cause and to take their place in the decision-making arenas to begin to help decide the big questions. Already more women are deciding to run for elective office and to seek appointments to boards and commissions.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D-Brooklyn) has stated that she will be a serious candidate for the White House in '72. Her announcement, expected next week, would make her the first black woman to seek the White House. The Congresswoman said she will enter key primaries including California and hopes to carry some clout at the Democratic National Convention.

The past year, President Nixon, pressured by women within and outside the government, issued statements about the extreme lack of women in responsible government positions. He also appointed a handful of women to government commissions where women had never been before.

But he raised hopes of women across the nation with the chance to appoint the first woman to the Supreme Court, only to dash them completely. Even Mrs. Nixon, silent on women's rights heretofore, expressed disappointment.

It was too soon, the President indicated, but within 40 years America could expect to see a woman on the highest court. Women's equality advocates compared it to arguments used 20 years ago against racial equality and tended to view Nixon's female appointments as tokenism.

And when just a few weeks ago he vetoed a major child care bill, saying that the concept of child care might threaten family life, the women's rights movement felt anew that it had no friend in the President. They wondered, too, if that meant that nursery schools were also a threat to family life.

Child care centers, one of the most unifying issues among black, white, poor and middle class women's groups, were beginning to spring up in small ways on campuses, in communities and at a few large corporations in the East. In Marin several small centers may be set to open next year.

BUT WITH money scarce, child care has been hard to sell to legislators. President Nixon vetoed the federal bill this year, and last year Governor Reagan vetoed the bill that would have brought matching federal money in multiple amounts for child care in California.

Movement women have found no friend in the California governor, either. This year he vetoed a bill that would have stopped public colleges from refusing to admit graduate students because of their sex — a bill designed to admit more qualified women into graduate school and thus obtain better jobs. Governor Reagan also vetoed the Beilenson bill that would allow doctors to prescribe birth control devices to teen-age girls without parental consent. Feminists viewed these acts as anti-women and continuing a double standard denying women equal access to education and good jobs, the right to control their own bodies and full personhood.

DURING A year of heavy unemployment, government figures continued to show women as the lowest paid of all workers and with the highest unemployment rate. Labor Department figures showed women earn only 58 per cent of what men do. Ralph Nader reported that 7.5 million women over 65 who are single or widows were the poorest group in America, half of them living on less than $2,000 a year.

Large numbers of women had begun to group together to fight back in their own behalf. A nationwide Women's Abortion Coalition formed and held demonstrations for the right of women to control their own bodies. It planned a National Women's Commission for the Study of Abortion, while anti-abortion groups planned to counterattack. No significant abortion legislation was passed in 1971, but New York State saw a record number of abortions performed under its recently relaxed law.

Women's equality magazines emerged overground, the latest of which is Gloria Steinem's "Ms." The more traditional women's magazines sprouted such columns as "Non-Sexist Child-Rearing," Betty Friedman's Notebook and Legal Rights for Women.

Anti-equality movement women, such as Mill Valley's "J.J." Jarboe made bill headlines, but even J.J. agreed with the equal pay and child care concepts, basic tenets of the women's equality movement.

BUSINESS AND university women's groups and clubs talked about the issues seriously. Mayor Alioto appointed a city Commission on the Status of Women in San Francisco. Marin County found itself charged with sex bias in employment by the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women and underwent a Fair Employment Practices Commission survey regarding the NOW charges of both sex and racial job discrimination.

A survey of the number of women appointees to county boards and commissions was voted by the Human Rights Commission, also. Results of both surveys are yet to come in.

A California chapter of the Women's Equity Action League formed and already has surveyed state appointive boards and commissions and found only 8 per cent women serving, though women are 53 per cent of the population. In October the state senate urged that more women be appointed to state policy-making boards.

WOMEN LAWYERS, sociologists and educators banded together within their professions to change inequities for women. Both Bay Area law and medical schools admitted higher numbers of women. Businesses attended seminars on federal contract compliance that spells an end to sex discrimination or an end to federal money for their firms. The National Organization for Women filed nationwide sex discrimination charges on federal contract compliance grounds against all public educational institutions.

Women's studies courses multiplied on campuses across the nation, with some high school women getting involved. One such group is Redwood High School's new Women on the Move, and other Marin high schools had study units on women's history and status.

A women's task force was formed by Marin Alternative to learn about the discrimination issues. The California Labor Council on Political Education (COPE) set up a women's activities section.

Women broke through to become postal inspectors, secret service agents, generals and U.S. Customs agents. One is head of the U.S. Tariff Commission, another a regional director in Santa Rosa for civil defense, one became head of the securities division of the Treasury Department, another obtained a high civil service commission job, another became director of a veterans hospital.

WOMEN IN federal civil service, generally considered less discriminatory than most career areas, found that they had a long, long way to go when a survey showed they held only 1.6 per cent of the two top grade levels. But job gains were expected when the Civil Service Commission outlawed sex discrimination last May.

A woman became a toll collector on the Bay Bridge, and another is the first woman deputy district attorney in Marin County, an appointment which had nothing to do with the fact that the previous month a complaint of sex discrimination had been made against his department, according to Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

Women began to gain top positions in religious groups, despite the statement of Episcopal Bishop Kilmer Myers that religion was for men only. Montgomery Ward elevated the first woman in its 99-year history to a company officer — assistant vice president.

Other business women requested management training opportunities equal to men's in their corporations. Press women were admitted into the all-male National Press Club, and UPI's Helen Thomas was the first woman elected to the executive committee of the White House Correspondents Association.

San Francisco attorney Joanne Garvey is the first woman to serve on the State Bar Association board of governors, but on another front Mrs. Nila Gilchrist was denied the job of assistant football coach at Idaho State College, even though she offered to serve for $1 a year and had taken coaching courses at the college.

THUS WENT gains and losses for the equality forces, which found an unexpected spokesperson in Gloria Cuzzi, who on her first day as the new superintendent of a woman's reformatory in Massachusetts appointed the first man to be deputy superintendent. "One should be picked on the basis of ability and not sex," she said.

Miss Teen Contest Now Open

(I-J Special Report)

ROCKTON, Ill. — Applications for the Miss California Teen-Ager contest are being accepted from girls 13 to 17 years old, who are U.S. citizens and residents of California. The winner will be chosen at a pageant in Santa Barbara in June.

Judging will be on scholastic achievements, civic contributions, poise, personality and appearance, according to Mrs. E. W. Johnson, publicity director of the Miss California Teen-Ager pageant.

The winner from each state will compete in the national finals in Atlanta, Ga., in August, and scholarships will be awarded to the winner and first and second runners-up.

Applications may be obtained from the Official Certification Headquarters, 126 Bunn Drive, Rockton, Ill., 61072.

Food And Nutrition Workshop

A food and nutrition workshop for all Marin County 4-H food project leaders will be held next Friday at 10 a.m. at the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints in Novato.

The workshop will be sponsored by the Marin County Agricultural Extension Service.

Elizabeth Sandlin of the extension service will show slides and discuss making jerky and fruit leather, and food preservation; Mrs. Marilyn Stogsdill of Lagunitas of the San Geronimo 4-H Club will give a demonstration of cake decorating; and Mrs. Frances Dahl, nutritionist with the Marin County Department of Public Health, will talk about food and nutrition for young persons.

Parent-Teacher Board To Meet

California Parent-Teacher Association board of managers will meet Jan. 9 through 14 at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

Problems affecting youth will be explored by the 100-member board and plans will be made for the state convention to be held May 10-12 in San Francisco.

Greenbrae Pair Marry In Missouri Ceremony

Janet Kay Wallis and Richard Stetson Adams, both of Greenbrae, were married yesterday in a ceremony at Willard Presbyterian Church in Willard, Mo.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wallis of Willard, was attended by Darlene Dinelli of Sausalito as her maid of honor.

Janet's brother, Tom Wallis of Willard, served as best man.

The ushers were Bunch Greenwade and Tom Lawson, both of Willard.

A reception was given afterward at the church.

The couple will spend their wedding trip in Carmel and Del Monte, before they return to live in Greenbrae.

Janet is a graduate of Drury College in Springfield, Mo., and is a teacher with the Kentfield School District.

Richard is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard M. Adams of Kentfield.

Slides on the recent White House Conference on Aging will be shown by Ed Ryken of the Marin Senior Coordinating council at Tuesday's noon meeting of the Edgewater Seniors of Sausalito at Campbell Hall in Sausalito. Ryken attended the conference as a delegate.

Members will bring bag lunches and white elephants as prizes for pokeno, a card game.

A POST holiday tea will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m. for members and guests of the Petaluma Woman's Club at the clubhouse in Petaluma.

Following a short business meeting a demonstration on ceramic processes will be given.

Chairmen for the day are Mmes. Robert Harris, Zelpha

Bennett, A. J. Hogya and Walter Zoppi.

THE REV. Bill Eichorn will be the speaker for the Triple C luncheon to be held in the parish hall of the Mill Valley Community Church Wednesday at noon.

Reservations chairmen are Mrs. Jan. Voakum and Miss Charlotta Williford.

Supple Leather

The supple leather used for making cowboy boots is now going into other boots and into making handbags. Especially popular for spring will be shoulderbags of the leather, which after being tanned and hand laced, will be used for large scale bags, according to Women's Wear Daily.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTLE

Divorcee's 'Sadistic' Ex Has An Affair With Her Mother

DEAR HELEN:

Recently I was divorced. No, I'm not sorry. In fact, I should have done it a long time ago. He's as cruel and sadistic as he is good-looking.

But I am in shock because my mother is having an affair with my ex, the father of my three children.

I've tried to convince myself it is none of my business, but I can't sleep at night thinking about it. Can't understand, either, for all through my marriage, my mother acted as if she hated my husband, and he her. I can't help but wonder now, whether the affair was going on before our divorce and they used the "hate" thing as a coverup.

All my life I've tried to understand my mother. She has been married three times and there have always been other men. With opportunities numerous (she sees to that) why would she choose the father of her own grandchildren? I don't think either of them is capable of love.

Please try to give me at least one good reason for a mother to do this to her daughter. — NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME:

I can't think of any good reason, but several bad ones come to mind: self-indulgence... jealousy or rivalry (have you two ever really liked each other?)... curiosity... maybe even nymphomania.

Inasmuch as you have no feeling left for either of these two, don't make yourself miserable by thinking of them. Forget they exist (your children won't find it hard) and get on with a new life. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've been going with a wonderful man for about six months and we are planning marriage.

Recently we were at the home of friends, and drinking a bit, but my guy wasn't drunk. I saw him quickly kiss another girl. He knew I saw, though I didn't say anything, and he was so ashamed he stayed away from me for about half an hour, in another room all alone.

Later when I faced him he was all broken up and said he had no reasonable explanation except stupidity. He told me he loved me more than 200 of her. He's a wonderful guy and I believe him — now. But...

Will he do it again? Will flirting with other girls be a habit after we're married? Should I seek revenge to show him how it feels? — HURT AND PUZZLED

DEBRA WICKWARE
To be June bride

Engagement Announced By Parents

The engagement of Debra Louise Wickware to Steven Philip Whitwill of San Luis Obispo has been announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wickware of Dos Palos.

The future bride was graduated from Dos Palos High School and is attending California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo, where she is a freshman.

Steven is the son of Mrs. Keith Whitwill of Novato and the late Mr. Whitwill. He is the brother of Capt. David Whitwill and Michael Whitwill. He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and Cal Poly, where he is doing graduate work for a teaching credential.

The couple plan to be married in June.

Clinic Set On Smoking Withdrawal

(I-J Special Report)

LOS ANGELES — Carolyn Hendrick of Chicago, coordinator of the national Parent-Teacher Association smoking and health project, will attend a seminar on smoking withdrawal techniques sponsored by the Los Angeles and California interagency councils on smoking and health at the Airport Marlin Hotel in Los Angeles Jan. 14 and 15.

Mrs. Kenneth M. Smith of Santa Ana, P-TA director of health, will also attend.

Timed to coincide with National Education Week on Smoking, Jan. 9 - 15, the seminar is designed to assist local agency staffs and volunteers in planning withdrawal clinics.

Los Angeles and California Interagency Councils on Smoking and Health pooled their efforts to bring to California key leadership in the field.

The national P-TA launched a campaign to produce America's first smokeless generation in 1966. Objective of the project, financed by a grant from the U.S. Public Health Service, is to keep young persons from beginning to smoke. A program of parent education is being used, and the P-TA is attempting to reach every parent of a child in the fifth through eighth grades with information about the hazards of smoking and the most effective ways of keeping children from starting to smoke. Millions of copies of "His First Cigarette," project brochure, have been distributed to families throughout the nation. Emphasis is now being placed on more student involvement in the program.

Cranberry Treat

While fresh cranberries last, add this idea to your list of family favorites. In your blender combine one-half cup each cranberries, walnuts, mayonnaise and whipping cream; add 3-ounce package cream cheese and two teaspoons honey. Blend well; chill, then use to fill drained, canned peach or pear halves.

Basic Beef, Pork

Beef ranks first and pork second in prominence among foods in the Meat Group, one of the Basic 4 Food Groups. This is the group we rely on for body-building protein plus important vitamins and minerals. It is recommended that two servings of a food from the meat group be included in the daily diet.

SEW SIMPLE

Proper Lessons Most Necessary

By EUNICE FARMER

Many of you either received a new sewing machine for Christmas or the money to do your own shopping for a new machine.

Remember a sewing machine is only as good as your ability to run it. All the fine things in machines can be yours if you take the time to learn how to use them. A demonstrator can do everything with ease, but you'll find you're all thumbs at first. Take the lessons on how to run your sewing machine properly. They are invaluable.

A resolution that would make for more sewing happiness is to sign up quickly for the best instructions you can find in your area. Remember, I said the best, not the cheapest. Sewing is a very complex subject. You will learn most in small classes where there is a great deal of individual attention. Money for lessons is well spent. Without the proper background, there is no way to achieve perfection and skill necessary to take your clothing out of the "loving hands at home" look.

YOU WILL find a return to the pure fibers this spring. Designers are a little tired of the typical polyester knits that have flooded the market. I am happy to report that silks, cottons, linens and beautiful wools are in the spring picture, along with more tailoring of jackets and coats.

This could open a whole new world for some of you. You'll find out quickly that making a simple, unlined polyester knit dress is a far cry from working with beautiful fibers and tailoring.

For those of you who have achieved the art of perfection in sewing and tailoring, you will probably want to go into the field of sewing for men. There are many qualified teachers in this field. Be sure you have expert guidance. There is nothing more disastrous than men's tailoring done poorly.

Why not resolve to spend the next few months at your sewing machine? By spring you will have some beautiful results to enjoy the rest of the year. Start now to plan and make up your mind not to let anything else interfere. You'll thank me later.

MRS. JOHN E. Donelan, Centerville, Mass., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"With most of our toddlers wearing one piece 'jammies' or play suits for winter, they are constantly slipping and falling on wood and vinyl floors.

ON BEING BLACK

Integration Among The Airlines

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

The gray-haired man, who had made several trips to the men's room — each time stopping to pick his arm around a button-nose, blonde airline hostess and cracking jokes for the other stewardesses — laughed as he sat down in the seat behind us.

"I know they're trying to be nice to those people," he said to his companion, "but that colored one is just too funny. She looks like she's from outer space!"

There was nothing funny about the black airline stewardess. In fact, she was quite attractive. What was unfortunate was the airline's beauty counselor's choice of makeup for her.

All stewardesses are carefully trained in the proper use of make-up by people who "know what's right." Her eyes were circled with chalk-white eyeshadow — the contrast was startling next to her chocolate-brown skin. Compared to the natural black of today, her make-up camouflaged her natural black beauty.

"Makeup is just one of the problems of being a black stewardess," said Tina, strikingly beautiful in an immaculately groomed "big Afro" and just minute traces of makeup on her bitter-chocolate dark skin.

LYDIA, an ex-airline hostess — one of her airline's black "firsts" — continued, "At first,

it's all very glamorous. After all, next to being a movie star or a beauty queen, no position or job so tenaciously heralds a woman's beauty and femininity."

Tina agreed, "Airline stewardesses are probably the most sought-after group of women. The logic being that if you are a stewardess, you are beautiful — in some way, somewhere. Even if you have a few difficult imperfections (and who doesn't?) you are assumed to have a beautiful mind — at least!"

"Even your family and close friends hold you in awe," said Valeri, a black hostess who just received her wings. "They think if you have been selected as an airline hostess, you must be especially beautiful and especially smart."

"If not smart, educated," said Lydia. "When I first got my wings, the few black girls

Cut strips of non-skid bathtub appliques in matching or contrasting colors the length of the feet and press them on the soles. They now become safe, washable and economical. This works equally as well on quilted fabrics and the crocheted slippers his grandma made for him. It's an added safety feature regardless of age."

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm curious as to what you mean when you tell us how simple it is to make a stadium blanket. What are the uses for one and just how are they made?

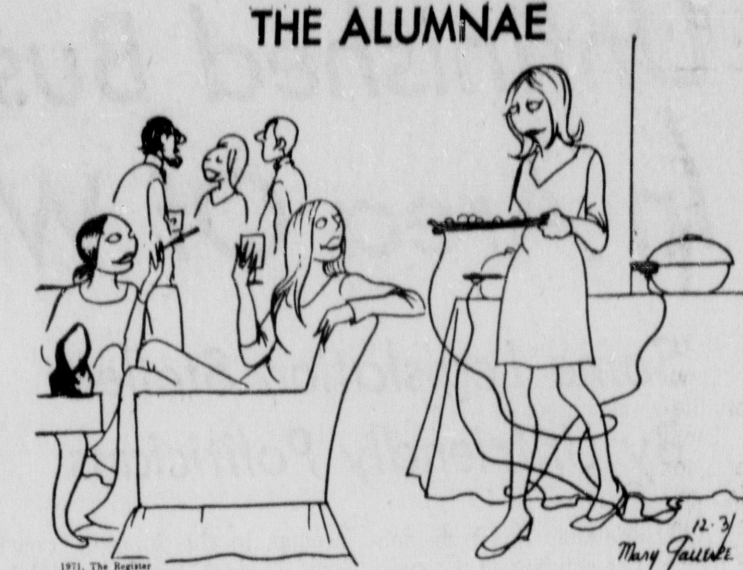

MRS. W.E.H.

A stadium blanket is just a sophisticated word for the old-fashioned throw blanket. They are usually made of wool, in plaids or stripes in a practical color that won't show the soil readily. However, I must point out that wool doesn't pick up the soil as easily as synthetics.

At this time of the year, when most fabric shops have sales on wools and remnants it's a great time to make one for yourself or friends or members of your family if you live in a rather cool climate.

Simply take one and a half yards of 54-inch fabric (a 54-inch square). Fringe all the outer edges about 1-1/2 inches. You usually won't have to machine stitch at the end of your fringing because this far back, the threads won't pull out without your help.

They are used by college students as lightweight blankets, throws for their beds, to throw on the floor when studying, to grab and take along to outdoor sports for instant warm-ups or for active sporting events.

"Now that everything is ready and hot, why don't you sit down and unwind with a drink?"

DEAR EUNICE,

I recently finished a dress that had rather deep slits at the end of long fitted sleeves. These looked so new and attractive in the pattern and yet when ever I wear my dress, the slits flop back and there you see the hem and the narrow facing. I have since had to tack the sleeves together at the middle of this slit to avoid the inner construction from showing. Why would a pattern company use this type of construction?

MRS. P.B.

DEAR MRS. P.B.,

I know the pattern you are referring to so well. I have used it myself and wondered about the same thing. I would like to see you check your patterns any time there is a slit, whether it appears at the hem of the sleeves or the lower hem of a jacket or skirt.

When you cut the sleeve facing, in this instance, it should have been cut deeper than the slit. In other words, after the slit had been stitched, clipped and turned, the facing would cover up the entire area of the slit so that the part that flips back and shows would be the same as the right side of the garment.

Incidentally, this is an excellent, understated area where you could actually use a contrasting color or fabric for the facing. When it peaks out, it would add to the attractiveness of the dress. In either case, remember to cut the facing about one inch deeper than the height of the slit.

Set-in sleeves take perhaps more skill than any other operation in dressmaking. If you want professional looking sleeves, Eunice Farmer's illustrated booklet "All About Sleeves" tells you how to set-in sleeves successfully. For your copy send 10 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Afternoon Nuptials Unite Couple

Tuesday afternoon nuptials at St. Raphael's Catholic Church in San Rafael united in marriage Belinda Holmes and Dennis J. Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Holmes are the bride's parents, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll Hayes. All are residents of San Rafael.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. S. B. Rowland of Sierra Vista, Ariz. Bridesmaids were Penelope Brody of San Francisco, Mmes. C. H. Exline of San Rafael, M. Scott McGowan of Greenbrae, W. A. Ingram of Davis and Robin Rivett of Sacramento.

James F. Hayes of Oakland, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Guests were ushered to their seats by Mike Devoy and George Wiegand of Mill Valley, Bill Bacigalupi and Chris Exline of San Rafael, Bill McClelland of Tempe, Ariz., and Bill Ingram of Davis.

Following a reception at Blessed Sacrament Church in Santa Venetia the couple left on a wedding trip to Carmel and Southern California. They will live in San Rafael.

Belinda is a graduate of Terra Linda High School, College of Marin and the University of California at Davis. She is employed by Pacific Telephone Company in Mill Valley.

A graduate of Marin Catholic High School and Sonoma State College, Dennis is a graduate student at Dominican College.

A Middle-Aged Sinner's New Years Resolutions

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
New Year's resolutions of a middle-aged sinner:

For the sake of my faithful and long-suffering wife, I will forego watching football on television during the months of February, March, April, May and June. During the remainder of the year, I will limit my indulgence in this pastime to Saturdays, Sundays and Monday nights, unless there happens to be a game on Friday night.

I will try to give up my favorite form of travel, namely, the ego trip. I will resist, insofar as I am able, the temptation to take advantage of a listener's credulity (or kindness) by subtly exaggerating my own status or achievements.

I will slow down, take life easier and get more rest, not merely for the sake of my physical health, but, more importantly, because I have learned it is well-nigh impossible to be kind, considerate and concerned with the needs of others when fatigue has driven me into a state of nervous irascibility.

I will spend more time walking in the woods and looking at wildflowers and listening to the music of waterfalls, for I believe that simple enjoyment of the beauty of nature is one of the surest ways to draw nigh unto its Creator.

I will build into my daily routine more fixed and inviolable times for prayer and meditation, because I have learned that it takes more than one act of surrender a day to keep my stubborn self-will in subjection to God's will. Knowing how brief and fleeting are the moments I can say, "Thy will be done," and honestly mean it, I will hand over the problem of reforming my character to God by offering daily the very realistic prayer of St. Francis: "O Lord, help me to WANT to love you."

I will not allow myself the emotional luxury of empty feelings. I will remember that there is no real compassion in "feeling sorry" for someone with troubles, unless that feeling is accompanied immediately by some concrete act of love, however inadequate it may be as a solution of the total problem.

I will endeavor to keep my nasty temper under control, even when somebody telephones me on a trivial matter during the supposedly sacrosanct hours of early morning, when I am totally absorbed in trying to get my column written.

Even though it seems a great waste to deny young people the benefit of the vast store of wisdom I have accumulated over the years, I will offer counsel to people under 30 only when specifically requested to do so. I will not offer advice to people over 30 even if they ask for it, because I know they don't really want it.

I will not expect to keep these resolutions faithfully all year long, because I have already discovered how difficult it will be to live up to them without an occasional relapse. Somebody just called me on the telephone.

Evangelist Asks Editor To Kick Him

CLEVELAND (UPD) — Billy Graham, the evangelist, has invited the religion editor of the Cleveland Press to "kick me in the seat of the pants whenever you feel like it."

Graham, in a letter, thanked the editor, George R. Plagenz, for criticism in a recent column.

Plagenz accused Graham of "casting an ungracious slur on the poor," on a nationwide television broadcast in which the evangelist declared: "We had rats in our day too. The only difference was we killed our own rats. We didn't ask the government to do it for us."

Graham responded: "You really know how to hurt a fellow. The reason it hurts is because you are at least in part right. I will have to be more careful."

"So kick me in the seat of the pants whenever you feel like it—I need it sometimes," Graham said.

Italian Priest To Visit Marin Church

Rev. P. John Favero, S.C., who is conducting an Apostolic mission in Marin County, will be at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael beginning next Thursday.

The purpose of his visit, which is sponsored by the Italian Catholic Federation, San Rafael Branch 16, is to promote the Lay Apostolate, especially in the fields of rest homes, convalescent hospitals and individual families.

A special committee has been appointed by Sir Luigi Providenza, founder of the Italian Catholic Federation and coordinator of the Lay Apostolate, to oversee such visits.

Father Favero is a member of the Missionaries Society of St. Charles (Scalabrini Fathers), founded in Piacenza in 1887 to work among Italian emigrants and their descendants in all continents.

REV. P. JOHN FAVERO

He studied in Scalabrini seminaries in Italy for 12 years and was ordained a priest in 1935.

Charles Higgins To Sing At San Anselmo Church

Rev. Charles E. Higgins, an evangelist-singer, will appear Monday through Jan. 9 at the San Anselmo Church of the Nazarene, 1509 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo.

Services are set for 7:30 p.m. each night except Saturday and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Reverend Higgins began his work in Christianity in 1946 as a minister of music in Columbus, Ohio, then moved to Pasadena and once again served as minister of music.

In 1951, Reverend Higgins accepted a pastorate in Lindsay,

Tulare County, then became pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene in Honolulu.

He is a baritone soloist and also plays the piano and organ in his revival campaigns. He has traveled extensively and conducted a missionary tour that took him to Spain, Italy, Israel and Ethiopia.

During his pastoral work Reverend Higgins has held regular radio and television broadcasts and served as a member of the General Music Commission of the Church of the Nazarene from 1960 to 1964.

Lutherans Call Mental Facilities 'Deplorable'

WASHINGTON, D.C. (LC) — Conditions in many of this country's institutions for mentally disturbed children are so deplorable that a moratorium on all admissions was given serious consideration at a national conference here in early December, according to a Lutheran Council youth executive.

Ralph E. Dinger, director of the council's Office of National Youth Agency Relationships, said the proposal was voted down after long debate.

It was feared, he explained, that the disruption within families not equipped to handle a mentally handicapped child requiring institutional care, might be too great.

The conference urged instead that immediate action be taken to improve the institutions so that a moratorium would not be necessary, Dinger said.

The Lutheran youth executive emphasized, however, that the amount of consideration given the moratorium idea demonstrates the lengths to which this national conference was willing to go in order to "shake up society" sufficiently to create public demand for desperately needed improvements.

Dinger and Ross T. Wilbur, a consultant in the Lutheran Council's Division of Welfare Services, represented the coun-

By DUSTON HARVEY
HAYWARD, Calif. (UPI)—The "Children of God" have been forcefully reminded that they are also the sons and daughters of man.

The Children, one of the larger sects in the youthful "Jesus movement," has come under fire recently from the parents of some of its 3,000 disciples living at 40 communes in Europe and North America.

The parents accused the elders of the fundamentalist Christian faith of using drugs, hypnosis and coercion to "brainwash" young followers into rejecting their families and giving up all their possessions.

In an effort to disprove the charges and counteract resultant bad publicity, the sect's elders sent their followers back home to their parents for the holidays.

"Evangelism is our business and the bad press is hurting our work among young people," explained Bruce Cunningham, the earnest 20-year-old leader of the sect's only commune in the San Francisco Bay Area in Hayward.

Cunningham and his wife live with two other married couples and 30 single young men and women in a small three-bedroom home in this suburban community 25 miles southeast of San Francisco.

Inside the single-story, pink stucco and frame house, a dozen disciples explained their belief in the imminent second coming of Christ to newsmen in evangelistic, scripture-studded terms.

The 18-to-28-year-old fundamentalists, most of them dropouts from the drug culture in San Francisco or Berkeley, appeared neither drugged nor hypnotized. But they willingly obeyed their leaders' instructions to return to their families for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays as the "will of God" despite the sect's belief they must give up their family ties to follow Christ.

This unquestioning following

SET TO HEAD OUT — These "Children of God" in their Hayward commune are seen before heading out to spend the holidays with their families in an attempt to show as "false of the sect's leaders, the surrender of all earthly possessions to their commune and the forsaking of their families have produced the strong parental reaction.

On the same day members of the Hayward commune were leaving for home, a young wife 400 miles to the south told the San Diego City Council that it should run the sect out of town because it had "brainwashed" her husband into leaving her and a daughter and giving all his possessions to the group.

Mrs. Mona Eckel said her husband left her when she refused to join one of the two communes in San Diego with him. She instead joined a parents' organization which charges that the sect uses drugs and hypnosis to gain members.

William M. Rambur of Chula Vista, a San Diego suburb, organized a group called "Parents Committee to Free Our Sons and Daughters From the Children of God" after his 22-year-old daughter, Kay, dropped out of nursing school and joined the sect last summer.

Rambur, a retired naval officer, drove to a Children of God camp in Texas to see her. "We tried to get her to come home with us, but she told us, 'The Devil's in that car with you. I'm not getting into a car with the devil.'"

At a confrontation between parents and sect members in Seattle this fall, Kay told newsmen she later had to flee from her father at the Seattle-Tacoma Airport after she failed to convince him she wanted to stay with the Children of God.

The sect, which has filed a $1.1 million slander suit against Rambur's group and other similar parent organizations, has charged several times that disciples have been "kidnaped" by their families.

"They can't believe the fantastic work we are doing," said Cunningham, who is known in the sect as "Rekem." "They want a physical explanation for a spiritual happening. These people just don't like our brand of truth."

Relief Continuing To Pakistani Refugees

GENEVA (LWF) — The Lutheran World Federation's Cooch Behar Refugee Service for East Pakistani refugees has continued without major disruption despite the India-Pakistan conflict, according to reports received here.

Dr. Yvonne von Stedingk, special services secretary for the LWF Department of World Service, reported that Olav Hodne, director of the refugee service, has not indicated any changes in the relief program developed since last March.

"His latest request for transfer of funds leads us to believe that the program is continuing generally on schedule," she said.

The LWF/WS executive reported that the full $1 million allocated from last March through the end of this year has now been transferred to CBRS.

Churches and donor agencies in Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Germany, Canada, the U.S. and Australia have provided the funds. Also, Dr. von Stedingk said, LWF/WS has received pledges of continued support of the program "at least at the current level."

At the present time, 10 camps have been provided for 170,000 evacuees into the Cooch Behar district of West Bengal and a supplementary feeding program has been available for uncounted thousands. CBRS also cooperates with the Indian Red Cross and UNICEF in the "Operation Life-Line" program for young children and new mothers.

The medical program has provided hospital facilities for 240 patients and includes outpatient treatment for 2,500 persons daily. Ninety-five Indians have been engaged in various capacities, and 12 Indian doctors have been placed at the disposal of CBRS for two consecutive three-month periods by OXFAM, the British relief organization.

In addition to the emergency aid efforts, CBRS has been able to construct three schools and establish a cultural program which includes small libraries, the provision of musical instruments and games for children and a sewing program.

Support for the CBRS effort also is being expressed within India Lutheranism. Dr. von Stedingk reported.

She said that a special clothing and blanket purchasing program has been launched by the India Evangelical Lutheran Church, a member-church of the LWF which is related to the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, a non-member of the federation.

The program will be supported by the Missouri Synod. Dr. von Stedingk said, according to word just received from Dr. Martin Poch, Missouri Synod world relief secretary. He recently toured the Cooch Behar district with President L. Abraham Raj of the India church.

Pageant Set At Holy Innocents

Holy Innocents' Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera will hold its 25th annual Epiphany service at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with a nativity pageant, candlelight procession and blessing of the congregation.

Nancy Westergaard will play the Virgin Mary and David Walraven will play Joseph in the pageant.

Following the pageant, a candlelight procession, with every member of the congregation carrying lanterns designed by Rick W. Thomas, will lead out of the church. A blessing then will be given by Rev. Tod W. Ewald.

Anaheim Man Denies Crime

George Kenneth Martin, 21, of Anaheim, pleaded innocent Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge that he burglarized a San Rafael sporting goods store Tuesday morning.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday.

San Rafael police said they answered an alarm at the Western Sport Shop at 902 Third Street early Tuesday and found Martin hiding behind a coat display rack.

Bikes Must Have License

With Christmas bicycles now in use, Novato police have advised that all bicycles ridden in the city must be licensed.

Alfred J. Mendoza, school traffic safety officer, said licenses are issued from 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays at police headquarters.

The fee for a permanent license is $1 and the bicycle is stamped with a registration number, he said.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Assn. Magazines and Parent's Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Lady and the Tramp" — A dainty cocker spaniel and a mongrel knight-errant of the alleyway brings humor, adventure and romance to the little lady dog.

"Living Desert" — The struggle for survival of the animals and flowers on the American desert remarkably photographed.

"Star Spangled Girl" — A trite comedy about a 100 per cent American girl who meets two young men who publish an underground newspaper. One falls in love.

"The Go Between" — A turn of the century English love story between a high born beauty and a handsome lower class tenant farmer as seen through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy who serves as their messenger boy. Deep emotional currents are felt. Well done drama.

"Man in the Wilderness" — In the Northwest Territory in 1820 a badly wounded man, abandoned by the crew, is found by Indians. His determination to survive is the basis of this overpowering story. (Boxoffice Magazine)

"Sometime A Great Notion" — Majestic scenery and the excitement of dangerous logging operations in the timber wilderness of Oregon make this film a tense dramatic adventure. Independent loggers defy the union which is out on strike. Violent acts and crude language.

"Support Your Local Gunfighter" — A large cast of excellent actors do not save this film from being mediocre. A ladies' man lands in a small western town and is mistaken for a skilled gun man. Humor is broad.

"Borderline" (Most sources say Adults Only) — "Diamonds are Forever" — Lavish production with all the sex, violence, gimmickery and tongue in cheekedness that make all the former James Bond films a success. Some parts strike a tasteless note but is the ultimate escapism. (Boxoffice Magazine)

"Diary of a Mad Housewife" — An acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage.

"Dr. Zhivago" — Lives of a handful of people in Russia before the war and after the revolution. Superb photography, acting and music.

"Lovers and Other Strangers" — Amusing and touching story about what happens to friends and family of two young people who decide to marry. Some nudity.

"Sacco and Vanzetti Murder Case" — A disturbing segment of U.S. history presented in a way to make one think. The arrest and trial of two Italian immigrants, professed anarchists, on charges of robbery and murder. Prejudice and corruption in the courts revealed. Made in Italy but dubbing is excellent.

"Straw Dogs" — A gentle pacifist reacts violently when danger threatens his wife and home. Filmed in England. (Boxoffice Magazine).

"Carnal Knowledge" — The sex lives of two men from college days to middle life done in a two dimensional, cynical, satirical style which becomes tiresome. Fine performances from cast. Language and sex are explicit.

CELEBRATE NEW YEAR'S 1945

Goodby 1971. Hello 1945. This is going to be very special. A New Year's celebration that spans the decades—all the way from "Jeepers Creepers" through "Lullaby of Birdland" to "We've Only Just Begun." On New Year's Eve you'll reminisce through happy tears at the torchy and tender sounds of Carmen McRae, who the Los Angeles Times praises as "rare and priceless"; and on New Year's Night you will soar through time with the old and very new jazz classics of the great Count Basie and his fabulous big band.

But while the music touches the past—the resounding beauty of Marin's new Frank Lloyd Wright music center will lift you into the future. You will note that the admission prices are terribly inconsequential—but then, in 1945, that's about what you would have paid to see these great performers. And admission for parties and groups is even lower. We're serving eggnog at all concerts; and on New Year's Night there's even a chance to dance in the musician's pit. But no dipping, please. It might be a little crowded.

THE TORCH IS PASSED

Greyhound's Last Hurrah: Few Showed

By JEFF GREER
Greyhound's San Rafael bus depot was a deserted scene this morning, as only a handful of passengers rode the firm's final commute runs to San Francisco.
"I usually have at least 53 passengers," driver Helen Draghi said as she surveyed the seven passengers on her W route bus, preparing to leave at 7:09 a.m.
Her bus's load was so small because of the long New Year's weekend, which closed many offices throughout the Bay Area today.
The passengers who were riding to work weren't entirely happy with the idea of switching to the new Golden Gate Bridge District bus fleet on Monday.
"I don't like it. Greyhound is very convenient, it's been very satisfactory," passenger Richard Norton of San Rafael said.
Mrs. Draghi, who has been driving for Greyhound for 28 years, will be changing uniforms and uses on Monday. She will drive an intracounty bus for the Golden Gate district in the morning, beginning in the San Marin area of Novato, winding southward with a side jaunt to Peacock Gap before going to Ross Valley. In the afternoon, she will take a bus to San Francisco, to bring the first day's commuters home.
She has not run one of the district's new, air-conditioned buses yet, but said they are similar to other buses she has driven for Greyhound.
As Mrs. Draghi's bus departed, another W bus wheeled in, to stand beside the depot door. It, too, departed with only a handful of passengers. One of them was Cleo de La Montanya of San Rafael.
"I don't know" about the changeover, she reported dubiously. Another woman, who declined to give her name, also said, "I can't tell" about the new service. "It could be better, but Greyhound has been all right."
Commuter Francis Callon of San Rafael was much more positive as he adjusted his topcoat and settled a briefcase in his lap.
"I'm just delighted," he declared. "I've been wanting this for a long time."
Inside the terminal, ticket agent Lurene Richardson had little to keep her occupied. Mostly, she directed inquiring commuters to the deserted counter where Marinites only the day before had gobbled pastries and coffee before heading for the city. Now its top was strewn with stacks of new schedules for the bridge district buses.
Greyhound driver Joseph Bridges of San Rafael stood nearby, chatting with the few commuters. Several were worried that the new runs would encounter "every stop light" in San Francisco due to changed routes there.
"I was a driver when we used to go through the old produce district, before they moved the terminal" for commuters to the Ferry Building, Bridges reported. "We used to have an awful time getting past the trucks." The old fruit and vegetable warehouses have moved elsewhere, but stoplights have sprouted on every intersection along the Golden Gate bus routes, he agreed with commuters.
Elmer McVerry, superintendent of Greyhound's Marin County operations, stood by to watch the commute buses leave before going to his own office in San Francisco. He said most of the empty buses would remain in the line's yards in the city.

LAST DAY — A handful of passengers huddles in the gloom of a nearly empty Greyhound bus on the last day of the line's commute runs from San Rafael to San Francisco. Most riders said they "didn't know" whether they would find riding with the Golden Gate Bridge District's new commute buses any better when they make the changeover Monday. This 7 a.m. bus normally is full, but today was a holiday for many San Francisco offices.

Some Grumbling, But Stores Will Post Price Lists

Ruling Is Source Of Confusion To Merchants, Internal Revenue

By DAVID DIETZ
Marin and Southern Sonoma shoppers can expect to find newly posted base price lists in stores which remain open this holiday weekend.
The lists were ordered a month ago by the federal Price Commission as part of the second phase of the government's new economic program. According to the ruling, the lists had to be posted by Jan. 1.
Those big and small stores questioned by the Independent-Journal yesterday said they will comply with the directive, although spokesmen for several of the small retailers said they would do so reluctantly.
Meanwhile, the ruling was a source of some confusion at the local office of the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS has been designated as an enforcement agent and information center in the Economic Stabilization Program authorized by the Nixon Administration.
Robert Yakerson, representative of the district IRS director, said he had been told by stabilization program officials in San Francisco that stores need post only signs announcing the availability of price lists.
But Stuart Patt, public information officer for the IRS in San Francisco, confirmed the month-old Price Commission ruling that the lists themselves must be posted.
The directive says that retailers with sales under $100,000 annually must place in a prominent spot the base price of the 40 items that had the largest dollar sales volume during the previous year, or of items that accounted for at least 50 per cent of total sales that year, whichever is less.
The base price is the one in effect when the 90-day wage-price freeze began in August.
Stores with sales of more than $100,000, the ruling says further, must post prices of the 40 items in each department with the highest sales volume, or of items that accounted for at least half of total dollar sales in each department.
The Price Commission previously had said the lists had to be available upon customer request. But, said Patt, "I must admit that compliance was not what we would have liked it to be."
Base prices are intended only as a customer guide, since many retailers have received approval from the Price Commission to boost prices beyond this limit. But the government reminds customers that if the price increase on an item exceeds 2.5 per cent — the loosely set maximum for wage and price boosts — they should ask the retailer for the new ceiling price.
Officials of three major department stores in Marin — the Emporium, Macy's and J. C. Penney's, all in San Rafael — said they already have provided price lists at various central locations.
Daniel Knott, store manager of Penney's, said the directive was "not unreasonable at all." He added that he was unaware of any customer requests for base price information to date.
Guido Bisazza, owner of the Big G Supermarket in Sausalito, said a book of prices would be kept near the check-out counters. "The only thing we're concerned about is losing the thing," he said. "It took a week to make it."
Small retailers were grumbling over the ruling.
"I'll do the best I can," said Henry Muller, owner of Kentfield Hardware, "but it's an impossibility."
"I guess I'll start Monday," said Bob Elrod, manager of the 7-11 Store on Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley. "but I think it will prove kind of a hassle. If you leave the list out for the customers, they get upset looking for the prices."
Cliff Chiaroni, owner of Charlie's Market in San Rafael, said the directive was "kind of a farce" because "the things you have posted probably aren't the ones the customers want."
Yakerson, the IRS official in San Rafael, said his office would conduct compliance checks, backed by an investigative force from San Francisco.
Stores will be warned if customers complain to the IRS. That failing, owners would be subject to a fine of up to $5,000.

New Year's Battle Lull In Indochina

SAIGON (UPI)—A lull in the fighting settled over Indochina battlefields today as both allied forces and Communists observed New Year truces. Initial reports from pilots who flew bombing raids in North Vietnam for five days indicated 11 military sites were damaged or destroyed.
The Viet Cong today promised heavy fighting in the days to come in retaliation for the American air raids on North Vietnam.
"The South Vietnamese people are determined to give back appropriate punishment for the criminal action by the American aggressors against the North Vietnamese people," the Viet Cong's provisional government said in a broadcast over Radio Hanoi. "The South Vietnamese people are determined to pour the storm and fire of hatred on the American aggressors and their henchmen."
On the truce front, South Vietnamese spokesmen reported only one violation by the guerrillas of their unilateral truce that went into effect at 1 a.m. today (2 p.m. EST Thursday). They said Communists shelled and attacked the village of Komrong in the Central Highlands, 300 miles north of Saigon seven hours after the truce went into effect, killing one militiaman.
The Viet Cong truce runs for three days, through early Monday morning in Saigon. An overlapping 24-hour cease-fire ordered by President Nguyen Van Thieu began at 6 p.m. (5 a.m. EST) today.
U.S. command spokesmen in Saigon said weather over North Vietnam was hampering picture-taking flights by the U.S. reconnaissance planes assessing damage done in more than 1,000 air strikes in five days of bombing along the border with Laos.
They said late reports from pilots who participated in the raids indicated 11 missile, anti-aircraft and radar sites along the border in North Vietnam were damaged or destroyed in the raids, however.
Military sources said heavy clouds and rainstorms over the North Vietnamese panhandle were hindering the photo planes and declined comment on damage caused during the heaviest bombing raids on the North since 1968.
Although the U.S. command declined comment, officers were mixed in their opinions as to whether the more than 1,000 F4 Phantom bombing strikes from Sunday to Thursday were effective. The weather was bad for much of the raids.
"As far as we can tell, the bombing was a real failure," said one pilot who flew the raids. "We hit very little."
But higher-ranking officers said the bombing campaign was obviously a success. They told of fuel dumps, ammunition stockpiles and at least one seaport left in flames.
"A damage assessment review is in progress," a spokesman said. "When information becomes available, additional details will be provided."
The U.S. command acknowledged the loss of three planes in five crewmen were missing North Vietnam claimed it downed 19 U.S. aircraft.
The more than 120 U.S. planes that pounded North Vietnam for five days returned to strikes in Laos today, hitting the Ho Chi Minh Trail and flying missions in support of beleaguered Laotian and Thai troops.
Reports from UPI correspondent Pon Chantaraz in Vientiane, Laos, said North Vietnamese forces had moved in behind the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) base at Long Cheng at the edge of the Plain Of Jars and were in a position to attack the base from both north and south.
Communiques from Phnom Penh said a guerrilla attempt to blow up a Cambodian government finance ministry banquet was foiled Thursday night when the guerrilla killed himself on being discovered assembling explosives.
In another incident in Phnom Penh, a government secretary was injured in the explosion in a toilet on the second floor of the finance ministry.

Hanoi Claims 20 Jets Downed, Names 3 Captured U.S. Fliers

SAIGON (UPI)—Radio Hanoi said today it captured three pilots during the five days of U.S. raids on North Vietnam and it gave their names.
The radio also claimed 20 planes also claimed 20 planes, were shot down. The U.S. command in Saigon admits to three.
The three pilots named in the broadcast came from two of the three planes the U.S. command admits having lost.
The Radio Hanoi broadcast, monitored in Saigon, said it captured two Navy men shot down Thursday (the U.S. command admits to two Navy planes lost Thursday) and one Air Force plane lost Sunday. (The command admits to an Air Force Phantom F4 lost Sunday.)
The broadcast said the two pilots shot down Thursday appeared at a Foreign Ministry press conference in Hanoi today and a third, shot down Sunday, is in the hospital.
The broadcast said the two men shot down Thursday were Navy "major" (apparently lieutenant commander) David Presley Hauffmann, "from California," serial No. 659133, and "Navy first lieutenant" (apparently Lt. Jg) Norris Alfonso Charles, also from California, serial 755256.
It identified the man in the hospital as Air Force Capt. Lean Allis Walter, from a place identified only as "Ugan," serial No. 3234269FV.
It said their birth dates were: Hauffmann March 1, 1941; Charles, Aug. 4, 1945; and Walter, Dec. 30, 1945.
It gave no quotes from the men listed as captured. It said
Hauffmann "was reportedly wounded on his left arm, wearing a POW (prisoners of war) uniform, his face was pale and frightened before the reporters' cameras."
It said Charles was Hauffmann's co-pilot. At the press conference, the broadcast said, Charles was "still in his pilot uniform, holding down his face in a very sinister way."
The press conference spokesman was quoted as saying that if reporters wished they could see and take pictures of the pilot in the hospital identified as Walter—indicating he was not in critical condition, though the broadcast said he was "seriously wounded."

Weekend TV Log In Today's Paper

Since no Marin Magazine is being published this week because of the New Year's Day holiday, the television log that usually appears in the weekend supplement is printed on page 27 of today's Independent-Journal, through Monday's 5 p.m. programming.
The regular TV log in Monday's I-J will pick up and continue the schedule from that point.

Fire Guts Plant

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Certified Linen Co. plant was gutted by fire Thursday night. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

Aide Says Humphrey Will Be A Candidate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The office of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey announced today that Humphrey will formally declare his candidacy Jan. 10 for the Democratic nomination for President.
Jack Cannon, a spokesman for Humphrey who is vacationing in the Virgin Islands, said the exact time and location of the announcement would be set later.
Cannon said Jan. 10 was the date for notifying Pennsylvania authorities of plans to run a slate of national convention delegate candidates in that state's April 25 primary.
Cannon declined to say whether Humphrey would run in the New Hampshire primary March 7.
Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, of Maine, the generally acknowledged front runner currently among Democratic presidential prospects, plans to formalize his candidacy in a paid television broadcast next Tuesday night.
Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., has said she plans to announce formally as a candidate early this month also, joining the already announced Democratic aspirants, Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Mayor Samuel W. Yorty of Los Angeles and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York.

Thieu Attends Mass In Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu attended the annual New Year's eve peace mass today at Our Lady Queen of Peace Basilica in downtown Saigon.
Thieu was accompanied by Vice President Tran Van Hough, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker also attended.
The Pope's annual message for peace and justice worldwide was read during the mass, celebrated by Msgr. Nguyen Van Binh, archbishop of Saigon.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Dowdy Guilty

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The jury that convicted Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., of accepting a $25,000 bribe thought the evidence weighed against him overwhelmingly from the very start of the trial, its members said Thursday following the verdict.

The jury of nine women and three men deliberated 15 hours, but several jurors said separately that most of their discussion was on technicalities, and basic agreement was reached quickly that the verdict would have to be guilty on some of the counts.

Dowdy, 59, was found guilty on eight counts of bribery, conspiracy and perjury, in connection with a $25,000 payment to influence a Justice Department fraud investigation of a Washington, D.C., home improvement firm.

VVAW Petition

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In an unprecedented action, the president of the Security Council left U.N. headquarters Thursday and accepted a petition from Vietnam Veterans Against the War — the group which recently occupied the Statue of Liberty.

Ismael Byne Taylor-Kamara of Sierra Leone, in an apparent move to avoid a confrontation with the 70 veterans, left the U.N. enclave and walked across the street where the veterans handed him a petition addressed to him and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

In their petition, the veterans asked the Security Council to tell the U.S. government to end all hostilities in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos; to set a date for withdrawal of all troops in the immediate future; and to "commence immediate negotiations in earnest" with the Hanoi delegation at the Paris peace talks.

Two Youths Safe

MOUNT SHASTA (UPI) — Two plucky teen-age Eagle Scouts hiked frostbitten and hungry off Mt. Shasta Thursday after spending 12 days in blizzards and sub-zero temperatures.

"I'm glad we made it down. It would have been embarrassing if we had to be rescued," said Vern Clevinger of Oakland.

The two 16-year-old campers were found trudging along a logging road by a construction firm foreman one day after they ran out of emergency rations.

They were driven to the filming location of "Climb An Angry Mountain" where they lunched with actor Fess Parker. Parker then drove Clevinger and Bill Dougherty of Berkeley to a clinic in nearby McCloud for treatment.

Frazier Talks

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — John Linley Frazier said yesterday he regretted the Santa Cruz mansion slayings of five persons "very much" but that it would take "thousands of words" to explain them.

Frazier, looking at his manacled hands, answered reporters questions while being led from his last courtroom appearance to San Quentin's death row, where he became the 99th occupant today.

After being formally sentenced to death in a courtroom crowded with long-haired young people who called the judge a "creep," Frazier was asked if he regretted the killings.

"Yeah, very much," he said slowly.

The 25-year-old former mechanic and high school dropout was asked if he could explain his actions.

"To answer that would take thousands of words and I don't have that much time," he replied.

"Do you believe you are insane?" he was asked.

"Compared to your established standards, yeah," he said.

Peabody In Running

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Former Gov. Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts declared Thursday he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for vice president in the 1972 election.

Arriving here with his wife and several aides to pick up the nominating petitions to enter New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary March 7, Peabody said he had made his decision Wednesday.

Ellsberg 'Unaware'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, indicted anew by a federal grand jury in connection with the Pentagon Papers he has acknowledged leaking to the press, said yesterday he was "not aware of violating any criminal statute."

"I can't regret having done my duty as a citizen," Ellsberg told a news conference shortly after the new indictments were returned in Los Angeles. During the "news" conference, he held hands with his wife Patricia.

Yesterday's 12-count indictment was more severe, charging him with conspiracy, theft of government property and violation of espionage laws.

Anthony J. Russo, who also was named in yesterday's indictment and has spent 47 days in jail on contempt charges for refusing to testify before the grand jury, actually had volunteered to testify in public, but not in a closed-door session, Ellsberg said.

Jets For Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials said today that the U.S. next month will permit Israel to begin buying on extremely easy terms some of the additional F4 Phantom jet warplanes the Israeli government has been requesting urgently during the past year.

In return, officials indicated, Israel has agreed to modify to some extent its conditions for beginning negotiations with Egypt on an interim agreement to permit reopening of the Suez Canal.

This would involve some pull-back from the canal bank by Israeli forces, U.S. officials said.

Violence Lessens

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Below-freezing temperatures cut violence in Northern Ireland to a minimum today, the army said.

An army spokesman said the night passed almost free of the gunfire and bombings which have claimed 206 lives in the British province in two years of bloodshed.

Hope Hopeful

VAN NUYS (UPI) — Bob Hope conceded Thursday that his proposal to free American prisoners held in North Vietnam was "a long-shot," but said there was still a chance it would be accepted.

"My offer hasn't been turned down yet and I'm not giving up hope," he said on his return to an airport here from his annual Christmas tour of American military bases overseas.

"We haven't had an official turnaround from the North Vietnamese yet. It's a long shot, but we're not giving up," Hope said.

'India Wants Peace'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said today India wants to live in peace with Pakistan but that the Moslem country must face the reality of an independent Bangladesh in place of Pakistan's onetime eastern wing.

Mrs. Gandhi spoke at a news conference only hours after President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan said he was willing to begin a dialogue with India immediately if India recognized what he termed a united Pakistan.

"We do recognize Pakistan," Mrs. Gandhi said. "But we also recognize Bangladesh ... Now the reality is that a new state has come into being."

War Danger

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
Prime Minister Golda Meir said today Israel's Arab neighbors are not ready to talk peace and the danger of war still exists in the Middle East.

As she spoke, Israeli warplanes for the second time in one day swept over Jordan.

Speaking at a ceremony where Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev handed over his command as chief of staff of Israel's armed forces to Lt. Gen. David Dado Elazar, Mrs. Meir said:

"It is not sure that the present cease-fire will be unlimited or will be continued."

'POW' Christmas

SAIGON (UPI) — Men identifying themselves as American prisoners of the Viet Cong said today they "will always remember and cherish" their Christmases in Communist prison camps.

A broadcast monitored in Saigon from the Viet Cong's Radio Liberation spoke of turkey dinners, Christmas decorations and "preparing a Christmas play."

A chorus of about six or eight Americans sang seven Christmas carols during the half-hour program.

Publishing Halt

SAIGON (UPI) — Most of Saigon's daily newspapers will stop publishing for three days beginning Saturday to fight a "substantial" government increase in the price of newsprint.

The government imports all the newsprint in Vietnam and sells it to the publishers. The current price is about $4 a ream. The government wants to raise the price to $6 a ream.

Remapping Measures Are Vetoed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Reapportionment of California's state Senate, Assembly and congressional districts was up in the air today after Gov. Ronald Reagan, surprising one, vetoed all three redistricting bills passed by a Democrat-dominated legislature.

"I would be derelict in my responsibility as governor to sign these bills into law," Reagan told a news conference at the Century Plaza Hotel here sandwiched in the middle of his holiday "working vacation" at his Pacific Palisades home.

Using maps and charts, Reagan pointed out the oddly shaped "tortuous boundary lines around artificial and bizarre shaped districts, aimed solely at perpetuating themselves in office."

"The Democrats made no secret of the fact that their bills were totally partisan—and therefore unfair to their Republican colleagues," Reagan said.

The flaws in the proposed remap included inequality of population in the districts, lack of geographical compactness, lack of effective representation for every voter, difficulty of access to all parts of the district, and division of community interests, Reagan said.

"These bills did such odd and insupportable things as placing the same people in two different districts at the same time through overlapping boundaries, he said.

He said the 69th district, currently wholly within Orange County and now represented by Assembly Democratic Caucus Chairman Kenneth Cory, had been gerrymandered to include every available Democrat in at least a dozen cities in Orange and Los Angeles Counties.

"This shows how you find Democrats in Orange County," Reagan said, dubbing the district a "Cory-dor."

He said some areas were joined together to form one district by a connecting corridor sometimes only as wide as a freeway.

Reagan voiced hope that the five-man Reapportionment Commission, headed by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and dominated three-to-two by the GOP, would continue its studies and declared that "Our goal is still a fair reapportionment—something California has not had for many years."

He also indicated it was possible the legislature might still act to resolve the issue.

Nobody expected, however, that the legislature would override Reagan's vetoes, because to do so the Democrats would need heavy Republican support to obtain the two-third majority vote needed.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democratic member of the Reapportionment Commission, already asked the state Supreme Court to step in to decide who will reapportion the state—a task made necessary by population shifts in the past 10 years.

Reagan About-Face In Fund Veto Flap

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has decided to sponsor a bill in the 1972 legislature to restore $1.2 million he vetoed from the state budget for the support of services for crippled children.

Top administration officials said the measure will be introduced as "urgency" legislation by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, who came within three Assembly votes of overriding the governor.

Four days after the override failed, Reagan agreed a deficit existed in the crippled childrens program. He directed the Human Relations Agency and the state Department of Public Health to determine its size and move previously budgeted funds ahead to plug the gap.

Acting Public Health Director William J. Kurtz and Assistant Human Relations Secretary Alex Cunningham Thursday fixed the budget shortage at $1.2 million, and reported the emergency appropriation bill will be carried by Crown on behalf of the administration.

As an urgency measure, it is expected to be expedited through the legislative process and take effect immediately upon signature of Reagan. In the meantime, Kurtz has assured counties that crippled children funds will be available "and they can proceed with their treatment plans."

During the override attempt, Crown ticked off a list of 23 counties which he said have severely cut back their crippled childrens services, turned patients away or were on the verge of abandoning their program because of insufficient state funds.

Reagan later ordered previously budgeted funds for next April, May and June advanced to plug the gap so "that there is no further disruption of services." The administration bill will replace funds that were advanced.

The crippled childrens services program is financed jointly by the state and counties. The state contributes 75 per cent of the funds in the form of loans.

The governor last year originally proposed the state's share total $12.6 million. The legislature boosted it to $14.4 million and Reagan vetoed it back to $13.2 million.

He said at $13.2 million, the sum represented an increase of $300,000 over the previous year's budget and increased repayments by families were expected to produce another $600,000.

Bill Rejections: A Reagan Record

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has set a personal record for bills vetoed in one year by rejecting 14 more measures, including one which would have established an "all-star" presidential primary in California.

The latest vetoes brought to 157 the number of bills Reagan has vetoed this year. The all-time record is held by Hiram Johnson who vetoed 431 bills in 1913.

Reagan's veto Thursday of the "all-star" primary bill by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, was the third straight time he has rejected the bill in as many years.

The governor's office said Thursday's list would probably be the last of the year, barring unforeseen circumstances.

Monday, the legislature will meet in a brief special session to consider overriding the governor's vetoes. But no legislature has overridden a veto since 1946, and this year is not expected to be any exception.

Under the all-star primary bill, the secretary of state would have put the names of all "nationally-recognized" candidates on the ballot. If a contender objected to having his name listed, he could withdraw by filing an affidavit that he was not a candidate.

This would have abolished the protection enjoyed by favorite son candidates who can virtually freeze out all opposition candidates from their party.

Reagan also vetoed these bills: Train — By Beilenson, to require legislative approval before construction of a proposed high speed Los Angeles Railroad. Reagan said he was opposed to involvement in the decision by state government because his administration is "dedicated to the concept of encouraging the development of balanced transportation systems through decisions made at the local level."

Snowmobiles — By Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, to increase the snowmobile registration fee by $1 and establish noise limits for the vehicles. Reagan noted he already has signed legislation regulating snowmobiles and other off-road vehicles.

Ballot — By Assemblyman Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, to permit voters to send in absentee ballots up to the time the polls close, instead of the current deadline of 5 p.m. the previous day, and requiring absentee ballots to be mailed with the ballot pamphlets. Reagan said mailing the absentee ballots to all voters would be too large a "burden" for local governments and that some large counties already do it without being ordered to by the state.

Schools — By Assemblyman Leon Ralph, D-Los Angeles, requiring the state to authorize six pilot projects in selected school districts where "schoolcommunity councils" would be tried. Reagan said he was not opposed to "meaningful parent participation in the educational process," but that it would be "contrary to this administration's policy of local control of schools" to mandate the councils at the state level.

Welfare — By Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, requiring the state to "maximize" federal financial participation in certain welfare programs and prescribing who shall receive certain services. Reagan said the bill would "mandate child care welfare services for large numbers of people who are not now welfare recipients and could not qualify for welfare grants."

Election — By Waxman, specifies that the secretary of state is the chief elections officer and repeals certain deadlines for county clerks to provide voter information while allowing the secretary of state to establish new deadlines. Reagan said the bill would have resulted in "needless confusion and unnecessary delays."

Probation — By Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, to establish a four-year test of a new probation subsidy program, with the state required to pay $4,000 annually to the county for each person in the probation program. Reagan said the concept needed "serious evaluation" and the bill was therefore premature. He also said the estimated cost to the state of $1.9 million per year was "prohibitive."

Training — By Ralph, requiring the state to establish standards for child care centers in the community colleges which would have been used for on-the-job training. Reagan said the bill would re-establish laboratory classrooms in the colleges which were deleted from the budget by the legislature and would have put the colleges into the type of research that should be done only by the University of California.

Classes — By Assemblyman Eugene Chappie, R-Cool, would have required the state to pay additional support for classes for problem students operated by county superintendents of schools. Reagan said his administration and the legislative analyst both feel that such classes should not be operated by the county superintendents and the bill would "proliferate" them.

Madera — By Way, to allow the parts of the State Center Community College District which are in Madera County to join another district. Reagan said the bill would exempt the Madera territory from a recently enacted law which sets up an "orderly process" for such transfers. He also said it would bypass the local school board and the Community College Board of Governors.

Michigan's Band Cancels Protest

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The University of Michigan marching band has canceled its protest of the political tensions afflicting the Rose Bowl today, but other students announced plans for protest demonstrations.

The band voted unanimously Thursday not to stage the anti-war demonstration at halftime Saturday that was to be the subject of a court fight today.

By a vote of 215-0, band members voted to ignore the resolution of the university's student government council, which asked them to restate in the Rose Bowl the pageant seen at Michigan's homecoming game this year.

The performance was opposed by Rose Bowl officials and forbidden by university administrators.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) filed suit against the school administration on behalf of the student government, charging the university officials with violating constitutional free speech guarantees.

A hearing on the suit was scheduled for today.

The antiwar pageant featured the band playing taps while the audience stood in silence and Vietnam veterans released black balloons symbolizing Asian and American war dead. A statement by the student government council calling on President Nixon to withdraw all American forces was to be read.

David Heroy, a section leader of the band, said the prevailing thought among band members in rejecting the antiwar pageant was that the group already has performed three such shows in the past two years, including an appearance in the 1970 Rose Bowl.

"We really felt that the band is already on record as to what it stands for," said the junior from Adrian, Mich. He added that the student council had failed to consult band members before initiating the suit.

There was no immediate word from the ACLU or student government leaders as to whether they would proceed with the legal action in view of the band members' stand.

The band's planned performance is entitled "Every Living Thing" and is a broad, upbeat statement on the condition of the world's diversified creatures, according to band members.

Although there apparently will be no antiwar demonstration by the Michigan band, protests by other groups have been announced.

The student body presidents of both Stanford University and Michigan said a coalition of student and antiwar groups plan to demonstrate at the Tournament of Roses parade and possibly the game.

Among the groups said to be included are the Vietnam Veterans against the War and the Free Angela Davis Committee from Southern California.

Spokesmen for the groups said the demonstrations would last all day and would include marching, chanting and distribution of leaflets.

San Quentin Theatrical Treat Set

San Quentin Prison inmates will be treated to a five-hour theatrical extravaganza tomorrow.

This 57th annual New Years show will start at 10 a.m. and run continuously until 3 p.m. according to J. R. O'Brien, information officer. It will be held in the prison dining room.

Entertainers scheduled include: Eddie Fisher, now appearing in the Venetian Room at the Fairmont Hotel; Carmen McCrae, singer; Conley Hall and the Jazz Representatives; The Whittington Sisters, singers; Ted Qualls, dancer; Milly Foster, singer formerly at Club Gi Gi; Howard Eubanks, comedian; Ford and Williams, comedians and dancers who have appeared in previous shows; Yukiko, singer, and The Sinaloa Club, brought by Dino Benetti. Other acts may be arranged before the show, O'Brien said.

Billy Grant and Jimmy Jamerson will be masters of ceremonies. Bud Moore and William Sutherland are producers, with Phillip Bovero assisting. Albert Arnold is in charge of the music and Edward C. Powell is in charge of the sound effects.

The show started in 1914 and has been an annual feature with Bay Area entertainers donating their time, O'Brien said.

Possible Bridge Leaper Seized

A Pacifica man who arrived at the Golden Gate Bridge by taxi yesterday was taken to a San Francisco hospital after he told California Highway Patrol officers he had intended to jump from the span.

Highway patrolmen said James Arthur Black, 44, got out of a cab at 6:40 p.m. near the bridge's toll plaza. Officers stopped him as he approached the east walkway of the bridge and asked him what he was doing.

He said he was receiving medical treatment for cancer, according to officers, and had decided to take his life.

Patrolmen took him to Mount Zion Hospital for observation.

RICHARD M. SIMS III
Ex-Marinite is sheriff's aide

Ex-Marinite Appointed By Hongisto

I-J Special Report
SAN FRANCISCO — Richard M. Sims III, former Marin County resident and now a San Francisco attorney, was appointed yesterday as attorney for the sheriff's office by Sheriff-elect Richard Hongisto.

Sims, 28, is the son of Justice Richard M. Sims Jr. of the State Court of Appeal. He will replace defeated sheriff Matthew Carberry's attorney, James Purcell. Sims' salary will be $15,900 per year.

Sims was reared in Marin County and graduated from Redwood High School. He was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout while a student at Redwood. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School in Cambridge, Mass.

After graduation, he worked as a volunteer for Vista, the domestic peace corps. He lived and worked in the south of Market area among the skid row derelicts, the elderly and others. He joined the San Francisco Crime Committee in 1970 as assistant executive director. He will leave this position to become the full-time attorney for the sheriff.

Greenbrae Proposal Due Study

A proposed county service area to include parts of Greenbrae within Larkspur City limits will again be considered by the Larkspur City Council, meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The service area proposal, tabled two weeks ago by the council, would establish a special taxing district for street landscape maintenance in both incorporated and unincorporated sections of Greenbrae.

Both city and county approval is needed to form the service area, which would take over maintenance responsibility from the Greenbrae Property Owners Association.

In tabling the matter, the council called for a 10-week "cooling off period" so opposing community groups could work out differences over the proposal.

However, county supervisors, who considered the matter Tuesday, said the "cooling off period" could not extend past Jan. 25 due to legal technicalities.

The service area — like others in the county — would have a five-member advisory board made up of Greenbrae residents. They would be appointed by supervisors based on recommendations from the community and would recommend a tax rate based on the level of maintenance desired in the community.

The property owners association has said it can no longer handle the job because of the administrative workload and lack of funds.

Legislators' Average Spending: $28,800

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The average California legislator tapped the public for $28,800 in salaries and expenses during the record-length 1971 session.

Marin's Assemblyman, William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, drew $30,420 as compared to the $29,100 Assembly average, and the county's senator, Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, drew $27,880 compared to the $28,300 Senate average.

The total for all legislators—the highest paid in the nation—was about $3.4 million, compared to $2.5 million in 1970.

State records disclosed Thursday that Republican Assemblyman Charles Conrad of Sherman Oaks was the top money drawer with $34,084.

Democratic Sen. Albert Roda received the least—only $26,470. He is one of a handful of lawmakers who will accept only $25 a day for expenses instead of the usual $30.

In addition to the length of the session, which stretched into the predawn hours of Dec. 20, the $5 boost in daily, taxfree expense pay and the salary increase from $16,000 in 1970 to $19,200 helped make the 1971 session the costliest ever.

The $30 is given to lawmakers on top of their salaries each day during the session or when they are excused on legislative business.

Legislators are also compensated for trips related to legislative business. Here is the list of salaries and expenses paid to California legislators in 1971.

Soviet Nurse Convicted In Huge Swindle

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Kiev nurse told friends a rich uncle had died in America and left her a $4 million fortune—but in order to get the inheritance she needed some money.

Over a two-year period, more than 40 persons contributed $129,520 to her "inheritance" fund, according to Trud, the labor union newspaper.

Among them were several chiefs of department of the ministry of light industry of the Ukrainian Republic, the newspaper said.

But the letter turned out to be a phony — there was no rich uncle and no inheritance.

After a recent 17-day trial at which more than 100 witnesses appeared, the nurse, A. Losinskaya, was sentenced to eight years in prison, ordered to pay a $91,840 fine and had all her property confiscated, Trud said.

Judge Refuses Negotiated Plea

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court yesterday refused to accept a negotiated plea by Howard Earl Rhodd, 21, of Novato, to a misdemeanor charge of using someone else's credit card.

Rhodd was arrested Nov. 16 and charged with felonious fraud in using the credit card of George Morf of San Rafael to get gasoline and a lubrication job at a service station.

On Dec. 7 Rhodd pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge, and the district attorney agreed to drop the felony charge.

Yesterday, however, Smallman noted that Rhodd has several previous offenses and refused to accept the negotiated plea. He ordered that Rhodd be prosecuted for the original felony charge. A preliminary hearing is set for Jan. 11.

Consulate Sit-In Veterans Ask Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A group of 18 antiwar veterans have requested a jury trial on trespassing charges resulting from a two hour sit-in at the South Vietnamese Consulate.

The demonstrators, members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, pleaded innocent to the charges before Municipal Court Judge John J. Hopkins Thursday. The case was continued until Tuesday.

Trio Convicted In Burglaries

Three East Bay women have been convicted of four felony burglaries committed in Novato last June and will be sentenced Feb. 9 in Marin Superior Court.

On Wednesday, a jury of 11 women and a man brought guilty verdicts against Sandra A. Moore, 18, of San Pablo; and Carolyn Jean Hankins, 23, and Sadie Evelyn Gamble, 35, both of Richmond.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner set Feb. 9 for sentencing.

The three were arrested last June 10 in Novato and charged with short-changing clerks — a burglary offense — at the Ignacio coffee shop on Entrada Drive and at the Fabric Fair, Lady Baltimore bakery and Safeway store, all on Diablo Avenue.

Pay Phones Ripped, Stolen

Three Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. coin-operated phones have been stolen from outside booths in San Rafael, police reported yesterday.

The boxes, yanked from their mounts, have a total replacement value of $333. The coin loss was unknown.

Palmer Sorensen, a phone company spokesman, told police two of the boxes were taken from 616 Irwin Street and another at 1015 Tamalpais Avenue, all Tuesday.

Motorbike Accident Injures Hub Man

Timothy W. Cowman, 21, of 148 Sacramento Street, San Anselmo, was reported in good condition at Marin General Hospital with a broken leg suffered in a motorcycle accident Wednesday in Sausalito.

Police said he was injured when he attempted to change lanes on Bridgeway, south of Spring Street, and struck a car operated by Kenneth W. Chaill, 20, of San Rafael, while it was stopped in a left turn lane.

Bicycles Stolen From Home Carport

Two bicycles valued at a total of $234 were stolen Wednesday from a carport at a home at 54 Junipero Serra, San Rafael, Reed P. Jackson, an occupant of the home, told police yesterday.

Jackson said the thief entered the open carport and cut chain locks on the bikes.

Recorder Office Fees $322,000

The Marin County recorder's office will wind up this year with a total revenue of $322,626 in various fees.

Recorder Noel Giacomini said the figure represents an increase of $101,949 over last year's total revenue.

The number of documents recorded this year rose from last year's 35,050 to 46,644.

Man Satisfactory Following Stroke

A Fairfax man who apparently suffered a stroke, according to the California Highway Patrol, while driving on the approach to the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital.

The highway patrol said Lee Aber, 50, struck a concrete curb at the toll gate of the bridge and suffered a cut nose in the accident at 12:10 p.m. Tuesday.

Novato Schools To Hear Bicycle Report

The Novato Unified School District board will hear a report on the need for bicycle racks at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato High School lecture hall.

Concerned with increased bicycle thefts from school grounds, the board recently ruled that all bicycles parked at schools must be registered and locked.

Cushman Takes Over Marine Corps Helm

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Robert E. Cushman became a four-star general and the 25th commandant of the Marine Corps Thursday with a pledge to keep his outfit "lean and mean."

Cushman, 57, was sworn in to succeed Gen. Leonard F. Chapman, who is retiring. He will officially take office as commandant, and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on New Year's Day.

Apollo Stamps

BUDAPEST (UPI)—The Hungarian Post Office said today it will issue its first stamps devoted to an American achievement—a block entitled "The Successful Journey of Apollo 15."

The stamps are to be issued in the first half of January.

Tax Campaign Plans Topic

Campaign plans for a March 7 election to extend the Sausalito School District general purpose tax rate for a two-year period will be formulated by the district board at a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the district office.

The district is asking voters to approve a $2.20 rate, 20 cents lower than the now-approved rate of $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation.

If the tax proposal fails to pass, the district's general purpose rate will drop to 90 cents next July 1, cutting the district's income in half to approximately $600,000.

Marin City Man, 18, Held In Burglary

Bruce Edward Morgan, 18, of 631 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary.

Morgan was booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court. Sheriff deputies said Morgan was arrested at 10:15 a.m. on suspicion of burglary at an unoccupied home at 124 Homestead Boulevard.

Mill Valley Police Arrest Ohio Man

An Ohio man was arrested yesterday in Mill Valley on suspicion of car theft.

Charles Stewart Scardino, 32, of Cleveland, was booked into Marin County jail and held in lieu of $1,250 bail. Mill Valley police arrested him at 8 p.m. Officers said the Volkswagen bus had been reported stolen by Scardino's father-in-law in Mayfield Village, Ohio.

Bank Lending Rate Cut To 5 Per Cent

NEW YORK (UPI)—Irving Trust Co., the 13th largest bank in the nation, today cut its base lending rate to 5 per cent from 5 1/4 per cent.

First National City Bank, which along with Irving Trust has adopted a floating rate in place of a prime rate, cut its base lending rate to 5 1/8 per cent from 5 1/4.

Births Off

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says the birth rate in the United States may have reached an all-time low in 1971: 17.4 per thousand population.

Phone Company Files Final Brief

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—In a final brief filed with the California Public Utilities Commission, Pacific Telephone said Thursday it needs a rate increase of $77.4 million a year to partially offset the cost of its July, 1971, wage increase.

The $77.4 million offset would be in addition to a $143 million increase authorized by the PUC last June but now under review by the California Supreme Court.

The company said the labor agreement, reached after a strike, will boost intrastate expense in the contract's second year by another $40.5 million and in the third year by $45 million.

Pacific Telephone calculated that its rate of return in 1971 would be 6.5 per cent, or less than the 7.85 per cent rate authorized by the PUC last June.

Youth Arrested In Fairfax Burglary

An Oakland youth was arrested yesterday on suspicion of a September burglary at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, Fairfax.

Ray Herbert Barnes III, 20, was booked into Marin County jail and freed on $5,000 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court. Oakland police arrested Barnes on the Fairfax warrant charging him from the Sept. 19 burglary in which $69 was taken from the church office.

Field Crop Stubble Burn Season Ends

Field crop stubble and straw burning season ends today, according to the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Open burning of prunings and losses from fruit and nut trees will be permitted through April 30, 1972. Such burning is permitted only on days when it has been determined that the weather will minimize the effect of smoke from such fires. This information is broadcast daily over some radio stations.

Reports Robbery

Maul Garrick, 1400 East Cotati Avenue, Rohnert Park, told Sheriff's deputies that he was robbed by three men in Marin City at 10:20 p.m. yesterday. Officers had no details on how the robbery occurred or what was taken.

Motions In Marijuana Case Set

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Hearing of pretrial motions for 18 persons — including seven Marinites — facing federal marijuana smuggling conspiracy charges has been set for Jan. 20 in the court of U.S. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel.

The 18 were indicted in mid-September by a federal grand jury in Phoenix, Ariz., on charges of flying 2,900 pounds of marijuana into an Arizona ranch, and later transporting it to homes in Tiburon and San Francisco. The case later was transferred to San Francisco. The suspects have entered innocent pleas in court appearances scattered over the past week, according to clerks in the U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

The accused Marin County residents include Will Walker, 27, Joanne Fahey, 31, Jon Robert Franklin, 33, Frank Richard Sayre, 27, all of Corte Madera; Janice Lynn Swang, 23, and Daniel V. Badaracco, 28, both of Fairfax, and Robert Halvorsen, 27, of Tiburon.

Among the 18 indicted was San Francisco attorney Brian D. Rohan, who was accused of buying the Arizona ranch to which the marijuana was imported from Arizona.

Moratorium Due Study

An amendment to a recently imposed 90-day moratorium on building in the City of Belvedere will be considered by the city council at 8 p.m. Monday in the community center on Beach Road.

Under the moratorium, persons wishing to build must obtain a conditional use permit from the city, according to City Mgr. William L. Cavalli.

The proposed change would make it necessary for persons wishing to build on substandard-sized lots to obtain both a variance and a use permit from the city, Cavalli said.

In other business, the council will consider an ordinance to set a five-knot speed limit for boats in Belvedere Cove and discuss whether signs limiting parking on Beach Road to four hours should remain or be removed. Many residents along the road have protested the parking limit.

Marin City Plan Is Topic

A revised version of phase one of the Marin City master plan will be discussed at a joint meeting of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the planning commission chambers at the Marin County Civic Center.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of both agencies, said the groups will review and evaluate the planning proposal with the consultants who prepared it, including Michael Kaplan, project manager, and Kennard and Silvers and Whisler-Patri.

The plan drew criticism at Monday's meeting of the Marin City Council because, council members complained, it was very similar to the original master plan for the community, prepared in 1958.

Sausalito Seal Really Cebrian's

Phonetically, we didn't do so badly, but . . .

The Independent-Journal reported yesterday that the paper had erred the day before in describing the bronze seal on the Sausalito waterfront as the work of sculptor Beniamino Bufano. The sculptor, the I-J said, was Al Sybrian.

The real last name is Cebrian. So today, we're correcting our correction, with an apology to the artist.

Stamp Club Meeting

The new Sausalito Stamp Club will hold its second meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Sausalito Youth Center. Member Sam Silver will display his collection of worldwide and Israeli stamp issues.

OBITUARIES

Daniel E. Gould, Of Tiburon

Daniel E. Gould, shipping company executive and Tiburon civic leader, died unexpectedly yesterday at his home in Tiburon.

Cause of death was apparently due to natural causes, according to the Marin County coroner's office.

He was a charter member of the Tiburon Recreation Center and a member of the Reed School District board in 1946 and 1947. He had resided in Marin County for 26 years.

Gould, 68, of 2380 Spanish Trail Road, was born in South St. Paul, Minn., and attended Hamline University there.

He went to work for the Robert Dollar Co. in 1925 as an office boy in the company's subsidiary, American Mail Line in Seattle, Wash. He was later passenger agent for the Dollar Line in Portland, Ore. He was appointed assistant to the president, R. Stanley Dollar, of the Robert Dollar Co., in 1945.

In 1940 Gould served for six months with the Selective Service System in Washington, D.C. He joined the Air Force during World War II and retired as colonel in September, 1945.

He was a 32nd degree Mason and member of the Scottish Rite and Shrine, Al Kader Temple, Portland, Ore.

He is survived by his wife, Frances, and son, Daniel F. Gould of Belvedere.

No funeral will be held. His body will be cremated and the ashes scattered at sea. The family prefers memorial contributions to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, San Francisco.

J. A. GREENHOW

Graveside service for James Alexander Greenhow, 78, Mill Valley, was held today at Olivet Memorial Park, Colma.

Greenhow died Wednesday at a local convalescent hospital following a long illness. He was born in San Francisco and had lived in Marin County for 40 years.

Greenhow had been employed as a ranch caretaker until his retirement 10 years ago.

He is survived by a daughter, Virginia Tiernan of San Rafael; a sister, Agnes Greenhow of San Francisco; three granddaughters and four great-grandchildren.

RONALD MORGAN

Ronald Morgan, 40, former Petaluma teacher, died yesterday in Eureka Springs, Ark., after a long illness.

Morgan had taught music and drama at Petaluma Junior High School for 10 years. He left Petaluma two years ago and had been operating a gift shop in Eureka Springs.

He received his bachelor's degree from Nebraska State Teachers College and had taught in Iowa before moving to Petaluma.

Funeral arrangements were pending today in Eureka Springs.

Snake Hobbyist Is Fatally Bitten

GARYVILLE, La. (UPI)—A poisonous cottonmouth moccasin snake fatally bit Bryan L. Bristow, 28, of Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday.

Bristow, whose hobby was capturing snakes, had caught a sack full of them on a plantation just before he was bitten. The snake's fang struck a vein in his hand. He was taken to a hospital and given oxygen, but doctors could not revive him.

Unfinished Business Remains In Area Of Women's Rights

Some Legislation Stalled By Unfriendly Politicians

(Editor's note: this is the second of two articles on the women's equality movement in 1971.)

By BARBARA HOSMER

Women's rights issues made some gains in 1971, but others failed to muster enough support and were voted down or vetoed.

Many of the legal complaints and women's special interest issues, such as the Equal Rights Amendment, are still unfinished business for '72, but women in most walks of life began to have their "consciousness raised" about their status in American life.

Women got together to form women's caucuses within political groups, professional societies, colleges and universities and governmental associations. One such was a still-forming women's group within the League of California Cities involving Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam, Tiburon Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood and Mill Valley Councilman Jean S. Barnard.

In July some top talent among women's leaders launched the National Women's Political Caucus, an independent coalition group, and its fresh new approach created excitement among previously uninvolved women. Spin-off caucuses have been held in many states as women sought common ground from a spectrum of political beliefs.

THE IDEA was to urge women to champion their own cause and to take their place in the decision-making arenas to begin to help decide the big questions. Already more women are deciding to run for elective office and to seek appointments to boards and commissions.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D-Brooklyn) has stated that she will be a serious candidate for the White House in '72. Her announcement, expected next week, would make her the first black woman to seek the White House. The Congresswoman said she will enter key primaries including California and hopes to carry some clout at the Democratic National Convention.

The past year, President Nixon, pressured by women within and outside the government, issued statements about the extreme lack of women in responsible government positions. He also appointed a handful of women to government commissions where women had never been before.

But he raised hopes of women across the nation with the chance to appoint the first woman to the Supreme Court, only to dash them completely. Even Mrs. Nixon, silent on women's rights heretofore, expressed disappointment.

It was too soon, the President indicated, but within 40 years America could expect to see a woman on the highest court. Women's equality advocates compared it to arguments used 20 years ago against racial equality and tended to view Nixon's female appointments as tokenism.

And when just a few weeks ago he vetoed a major child care bill, saying that the concept of child care might threaten family life, the women's rights movement felt anew that it had no friend in the President. They wondered, too, if that meant that nursery schools were also a threat to family life.

Child care centers, one of the most unifying issues among black, white, poor and middle class women's groups, were beginning to spring up in small ways on campuses, in communities and at a few large corporations in the East. In Marin several small centers may be set to open next year.

BUT WITH money scarce, child care has been hard to sell to legislators. President Nixon vetoed the federal bill this year, and last year Governor Reagan vetoed the bill that would have brought matching federal money in multiple amounts for child care in California.

Movement women have found no friend in the California governor, either. This year he vetoed a bill that would have stopped public colleges from refusing to admit graduate students because of their sex — a bill designed to admit more qualified women into graduate school and thus obtain better jobs. Governor Reagan also vetoed the Beilenson bill that would allow doctors to prescribe birth control devices to teen-age girls without parental consent. Feminists viewed these acts as anti-women and continuing a double standard denying women equal access to education and good jobs, the right to control their own bodies and full personhood.

DURING A year of heavy unemployment, government figures continued to show women as the lowest paid of all workers and with the highest unemployment rate. Labor Department figures showed women earn only 58 per cent of what men do. Ralph Nader reported that 7.5 million women over 65 who are single or widows were the poorest group in America, half of them living on less than $2,000 a year.

Large numbers of women had begun to group together to fight back in their own behalf. A nationwide Women's Abortion Coalition formed and held demonstrations for the right of women to control their own bodies. It planned a National Women's Commission for the Study of Abortion, while anti-abortion groups planned to counterattack. No significant abortion legislation was passed in 1971, but New York State saw a record number of abortions performed under its recently relaxed law.

Women's equality magazines emerged overground, the latest of which is Gloria Steinem's "Ms." The more traditional women's magazines sprouted such columns as "Non-Sexist Child-Rearing," Betty Friedan's Notebook and Legal Rights for Women.

Anti-equality movement women, such as Mill Valley's "J.J." Jarboe made brief headlines, but even J.J. agreed with the equal pay and child care concepts, basic tenets of the women's equality movement.

BUSINESS AND university women's groups and clubs talked about the issues seriously. Mayor Alioto appointed a city Commission on the Status of Women in San Francisco. Marin County found itself charged with sex bias in employment by the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women and underwent a Fair Employment Practices Commission survey regarding the NOW charges of both sex and racial job discrimination.

A survey of the number of women appointees to county boards and commissions was voted by the Human Rights Commission, also. Results of both surveys are yet to come in.

A California chapter of the Women's Equity Action League formed and already has surveyed state appointive boards and commissions and found only 8 per cent women serving, though women are 53 per cent of the population. In October the state senate urged that more women be appointed to state policy-making boards.

WOMEN LAWYERS, sociologists and educators banded together within their professions to change inequities for women. Both Bay Area law and medical schools admitted higher numbers of women. Businesses attended seminars on federal contract compliance that spells an end to sex discrimination or an end to federal money for their firms. The National Organization for Women filed nationwide sex discrimination charges on federal contract compliance grounds against all public educational institutions.

Women's studies courses multiplied on campuses across the nation, with some high school women getting involved. One such group is Redwood High School's new Women on the Move, and other Marin high schools had study units on women's history and status.

A women's task force was formed by Marin Alternative to learn about the discrimination issues. The California Labor Council on Political Education (COPE) set up a women's activities section.

Women broke through to become postal inspectors, secret service agents, generals and U.S. Customs agents. One is head of the U.S. Tariff Commission, another a regional director in Santa Rosa for civil defense, one became head of the securities division of the Treasury Department, another obtained a high civil service commission job, another became director of a veterans hospital.

WOMEN IN federal civil service, generally considered less discriminatory than most career areas, found they had a long, long way to go when a survey showed they held only 1.6 per cent of the two top grade levels. But job gains were expected when the Civil Service Commission outlawed sex discrimination last May.

A woman became a toll collector on the Bay Bridge, and another is the first woman deputy district attorney in Marin County, an appointment which had nothing to do with the fact that the previous month a complaint of sex discrimination had been made against his department, according to Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

Women began to gain top positions in religious groups, despite the statement of Episcopal Bishop Kilmer Myers that religion was for men only. Montgomery Ward elevated the first woman in its 99-year history to a company officer — assistant vice president.

Other business women requested management training opportunities equal to men's in their corporations. Press women were admitted into the all-male National Press Club, and UPI's Helen Thomas was the first woman elected to the executive committee of the White House Correspondents Association.

San Francisco attorney Joanne Garvey is the first woman to serve on the State Bar Association board of governors, but on another front Mrs. Nila Gilchrist was denied the job of assistant football coach at Idaho State College, even though she offered to serve for $1 a year and had taken coaching courses at the college.

THUS WENT gains and losses for the equality forces, which found an unexpected spokesperson in Gloria Cuzzi, who on her first day as the new superintendent of a woman's reformatory in Massachusetts appointed the first man to be deputy superintendent.

"One should be picked on the basis of ability and not sex," she said.

Greenbrae Pair Marry In Missouri Ceremony

Janet Kay Wallis and Richard Stetson Adams, both of Greenbrae, were married yesterday in a ceremony at Willard Presbyterian Church in Willard, Mo.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wallis of Willard, was attended by Darlene Dinelli of Sausalito as her maid of honor.

Janet's brother, Tom Wallis of Willard, served as best man. The ushers were Bunch Greenwade and Tom Lawson, both of Willard.

A reception was given afterward at the church.

The couple will spend their wedding trip in Carmel and Del Monte, before they return to live in Greenbrae.

Janet is a graduate of Drury College in Springfield, Mo., and is a teacher with the Kentfield School District.

Richard is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard M. Adams of Kentfield.

The supple leather used for making cowboy boots is now going into other boots and into making handbags. Especially popular for spring will be shoulderbags of the leather, which after being tanned and hand laced, will be used for large scale bags, according to Women's Wear Daily.

HELEN HELP US!

Divorcee's 'Sadistic' Ex Has An Affair With Her Mother

DEAR HELEN:

Recently I was divorced. No, I'm not sorry. In fact, I should have done it a long time ago. He's as cruel and sadistic as he is good-looking.

But I am in shock because my mother is having an affair with my ex, the father of my three children.

I've tried to convince myself it is none of my business, but I can't sleep at night thinking about it. Can't understand, either, for all through my marriage, my mother acted as if she hated my husband, and he her. I can't help but wonder now, whether the affair was going on before our divorce and they used the "hate" thing as a coverup.

All my life I've tried to understand my mother. She has been married three times and there have always been other men. With opportunities numerous (she sees to that) why would she choose the father of her own grandchildren? I don't think either of them is capable of love.

Please try to give me at least one good reason for a mother to do this to her daughter. — NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME:

I can't think of any good reason, but several bad ones come to mind: self-indulgence... jealousy or rivalry (have you two ever really liked each other?)... curiosity... maybe even nymphomania.

Inasmuch as you have no feeling left for either of these two, don't make yourself miserable by thinking of them. Forget they exist (your children won't find it hard) and get on with a new life. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've been going with a wonderful man for about six months and we are planning marriage.

Recently we were at the home of friends, and drinking a bit, but my guy wasn't drunk. I saw him quickly kiss another girl. He knew I saw, though I didn't say anything, and he was so ashamed he stayed away from me for about half an hour, in another room all alone.

Later when I faced him he was all broken up and said he had no reasonable explanation except stupidity. He told me he loved me more than 200 of her. He's a wonderful guy and I believe him — now. But...

Will he do it again? Will he flirt with other girls be a habit after we're married? Should I seek revenge to show him how it feels? — HURT AND PUZZLED

DEAR H AND P:

Question No. 1: Probably — at a few emotional times in his life, but what's a harmless kiss, in public, or among friends — especially when your man doesn't try to hide it from you?

Question No. 2: Probably not. He doesn't seem the type, right?

Question No. 3: Definitely not. He's already done penance. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

For three years I've noticed symptoms that I'm just awfully afraid mean cancer. I'll describe them to you but don't print them, just tell me what to do. Is there any medication I can take? I know you think I'm childish, but I just can't face a doctor and hear him tell me I don't have long to live. — AGE 17, AND DON'T WANT TO DIE

Even a doctor couldn't diagnose long distance, but my doctor joins me in saying: make an appointment for a physical examination immediately. Chances are good that you have a condition which can be easily treated and cured — but if you let it go, you may be facing serious trouble later on.

Don't delay. Living with this constant fear may make your "symptoms" seem bigger than life, but you mustn't take chances. — H.

The engagement of Debra Louise Wickware to Steven Philip Whitwill of San Luis Obispo has been announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wickware of Dos Palos.

The future bride was graduated from Dos Palos High School and is attending California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo, where she is a freshman.

Steven is the son of Mrs. Keith Whitwill of Novato and the late Mr. Whitwill. He is the brother of Capt. David Whitwill and Michael Whitwill. He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and Cal Poly, where he is doing graduate work for a teaching credential.

The couple plan to be married in June.

Clinic Set On Smoking Withdrawal

(I-J Special Report)

LOS ANGELES — Carolyn Hendrick of Chicago, coordinator of the national Parent-Teacher Association smoking and health project, will attend a seminar on smoking withdrawal techniques sponsored by the Los Angeles and California interagency councils on smoking and health at the Airport Marina Hotel in Los Angeles Jan. 14 and 15.

Mrs. Kenneth M. Smith of Santa Ana, P-TA director of health, will also attend.

Timed to coincide with National Education Week on Smoking, Jan. 9-15, the seminar is designed to assist local agency staffs and volunteers in planning withdrawal clinics.

Los Angeles and California Interagency Councils on Smoking and Health pooled their efforts to bring to California key leadership in the field.

The national P-TA launched a campaign to produce America's first smokeless generation in 1966. Objective of the project, financed by a grant from the U.S. Public Health Service, is to keep young persons from beginning to smoke. A program of parent education is being used, and the P-TA is attempting to reach every parent of a child in the fifth through eighth grades with information about the hazards of smoking and the most effective ways of keeping children from starting to smoke. Millions of copies of "His First Cigarette," project brochure, have been distributed to families throughout the nation. Emphasis is now being placed on more student involvement in the program.

Cranberry Treat

While fresh cranberries last, add this idea to your list of family favorites. In your blender combine one-half cup each cranberries, walnuts, mayonnaise and whipping cream; add 3-ounce package cream cheese and two teaspoons honey. Blend well; chill, then use to fill drained, canned peach or pear halves.

Basic Beef, Pork

Beef ranks first and pork second in prominence among foods in the Meat Group, one of the Basic 4 Food Groups. This is the group we rely on for body-building protein plus important vitamins and minerals. It is recommended that two servings of a food from the meat group be included in the daily diet.

SEW SIMPLE

Proper Lessons Most Necessary

By EUNICE FARMER

Many of you either received a new sewing machine for Christmas or the money to do your own shopping for a new machine.

Remember a sewing machine is only as good as your ability to run it. All the fine things in machines can be yours if you take the time to learn how to use them. A demonstrator can do everything with ease, but you'll find you're all thumbs at first. Take the lessons on how to run your sewing machine properly. They are invaluable.

A resolution that would make for more sewing happiness is to sign up quickly for the best instructions you can find in your area. Remember, I said the best, not the cheapest. Sewing is a very complex subject. You will learn most in small classes where there is a great deal of individual attention. Money for lessons is well spent. Without the proper background, there is no way to achieve perfection and skill necessary to take your clothing out of the "loving hands at home" look.

YOU WILL find a return to the pure fibers this spring. Designers are a little tired of the typical polyester knits that have flooded the market. I am happy to report that silks, cottons, linens and beautiful wools are in the spring picture, along with more tailoring of jackets and coats.

This could open a whole new world for some of you. You'll find out quickly that making a simple, unlined polyester knit dress is a far cry from working with beautiful fibers and tailoring.

For those of you who have achieved the art of perfection in sewing and tailoring, you will probably want to go into the field of sewing for men. There are many qualified teachers in this field. Be sure you have expert guidance. There is nothing more disastrous than men's tailoring done poorly.

Why not resolve to spend the next few months at your sewing machine? By spring you will have some beautiful results to enjoy the rest of the year. Start now to plan and make up your mind not to let anything else interfere. You'll thank me later.

MRS. JOHN E. Donelan, Centerville, Mass., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"With most of our toddlers wearing one piece 'jammies' or play suits for winter, they are constantly slipping and falling on wood and vinyl floors.

Integration Among The Airlines

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

The gray-haired man, who had made several trips to the men's room — each time stopping to pick his arm around a button-nose, blonde airline hostess and cracking jokes for the other stewardesses — laughed as he sat down in the seat behind us.

"I know they're trying to be nice to those people," he said to his companion, "but that colored one is just too funny. She looks like she's from outer space!"

There was nothing funny about the black airline stewardess. In fact, she was quite attractive. What was unfortunate was the airline's beauty counselor's choice of makeup for her.

All stewardesses are carefully trained in the proper use of make-up by people who "know what's right." Her eyes were circled with chalk-white eyeshadow — the contrast was startling next to her chocolate-brown skin. Compared to the natural black of today, her make-up camouflaged her natural black beauty.

"Makeup is just one of the problems of being a black stewardess," said Tina, strikingly beautiful in an immaculately groomed "big Afro" and just minute traces of makeup on her bitter-chocolate dark skin.

LYDIA, an ex-airline hostess — one of her airline's black "firsts" — continued, "At first,

it's all very glamorous. After all, next to being a movie star or a beauty queen, no position or job so tenaciously heralds a woman's beauty and femininity."

Tina agreed, "Airline stewardesses are probably the most sought-after group of women. The logic being that if you are a stewardess, you are beautiful — in some way, somewhere. Even if you have a few difficult imperfections (and who doesn't?) you are assumed to have a beautiful mind — at least!"

"Even your family and close friends hold you in awe," said Valeri, a black hostess who just received her wings. "They think if you have been selected as an airline hostess, you must be especially beautiful and especially smart."

"If not smart, educated," said Lydia. "When I first got my wings, the few black girls

Cut strips of non-skid bathtub appliques in matching or contrasting colors the length of the feet and press them on the soles. They now become safe, washable and economical. This works equally as well on quilted fabrics and the crocheted slippers his grandma made for him. It's an added safety feature regardless of age."

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm curious as to what you mean when you tell us how simple it is to make a stadium blanket. What are the uses for one and just how are they made?

MRS. W.E.H.

DEAR MRS. W.E.H.,

A stadium blanket is just a sophisticated word for the old-fashioned throw blanket. They are usually made of wool, in plaids or stripes in a practical color that won't show the soil readily. However, I must point out that wool doesn't pick up the soil as easily as synthetics.

At this time of the year, when most fabric shops have sales on wools and remnants it's a great time to make one for yourself or friends or members of your family if you live in a rather cool climate.

Simply take one and a half yards of 54-inch fabric (a 54-inch square). Fringe all the outer edges about 1-1/2 inches. You usually won't have to machine stitch at the end of your fringing because this far back, the threads won't pull out without your help.

They are used by college students as lightweight blankets, throws for their beds, to was a certain precarious acceptance of them.

"White men seem to pursue you for two reasons — you are a stew and therefore beautiful, and you are a black woman and therefore the embodiment of sensuality."

All said they are not women's liberationists, but felt that "flying the friendly skies" was highly overrated.

"Too many things are phony — the make-up, the plastered-on smile. I'm going back to teaching in September — where I can make a real contribution."

THE BLACK stewardesses admitted that most airlines are overtly working hard at disentangling themselves from the discrimination stance that has rightfully been placed upon them. But, still, the airlines are in the business to make money. If a black stewardess is going to sabotage their money-making prowess, they are not about to jeopardize their white clientele in the name of that utopian quality — integration.

On the other side of that same coin, the contemporary black affluence has brought about a highly visible increase in black customers. One young black executive, who spent $5,000 in flight costs last year, acknowledges that he is highly selective about the airlines he uses.

"If I don't receive the courteous treatment and service that the airline peddles with its overpriced tickets, I take my business to another airline," he added with male relish. "And, I consider it an appreciation of my aesthetic taste for a black airline stewardess to be serving my flight."

Blacks may be a mere 20 to 25 per cent of the total population, but if all blacks were to withdraw their business from the existing airlines and fly Air Black — Air Black could subsidize very nicely on the proceeds.

Passengers reportedly view black stewardesses with a variety of emotions. Some are obviously and openly happy to see them — the overt liberals and other blacks. Some folks could care less one way or the other.

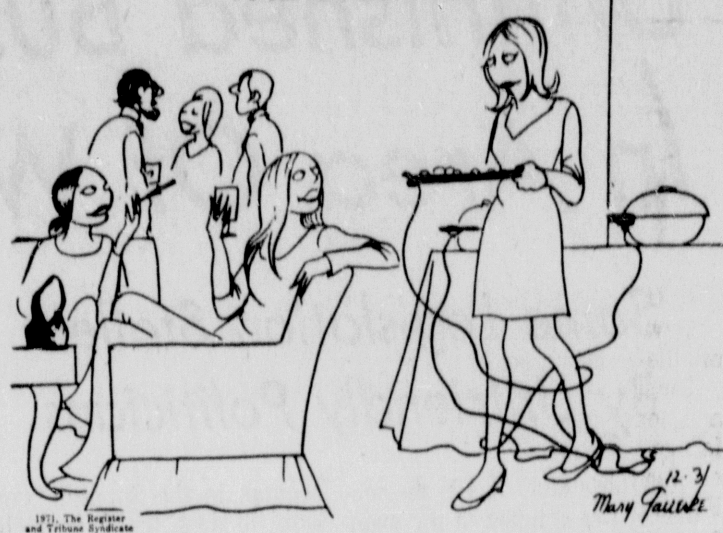

A few passengers obviously find their presence distasteful. Occasionally, one will request to be served by the white stewardesses.

"There are just a few particularly fresh customers — all stewardesses get that. But some overtures are obviously racially oriented. They come on with that, 'I once had a black girlfriend...' line."

"I have fewer incidents with fresh customers than I do with pilots. I have met many white men who are looking for their 'black experience.' Their line is: 'Is it true what they say about black women?' I tell them, 'For sure!'"

TODAY, ESPECIALLY with being beautiful, the black stewardesses felt that there

DEAR EUNICE,

I recently finished a dress that had rather deep slits at the end of long fitted sleeves. These looked so new and attractive in the pattern and yet when ever I wear my dress, the slits flip back and there you see the hem and the narrow facing. I have since had to tack the sleeves together at the middle of this slit to avoid the inner construction from showing. Why would a pattern company use this type of construction?

MRS. P.B.

DEAR MRS. P.B.,

I know the pattern you are referring to so well. I have used it myself and wondered about the same thing. I would like to see you check your patterns any time there is a slit, whether it appears at the hem of the sleeves or the lower hem of a jacket or skirt.

When you cut the sleeve facing, in this instance, it should have been cut deeper than the slit. In other words, after the slit had been stitched, clipped and turned, the facing would cover up the entire area of the slit so that the part that flips back and shows would be the same as the right side of the garment.

Incidentally, this is an excellent, understated area where you could actually use a contrasting color or fabric for the facing. When it peaks out, it would add to the attractiveness of the dress. In either case, remember to cut the facing about one inch deeper than the height of the slit.

Set-in sleeves take perhaps more skill than any other operation in dressmaking. If you want professional looking sleeves, Eunice Farmer's illustrated booklet "All About Sleeves" tells you how to set-in sleeves successfully. For your copy send 10 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Afternoon Nuptials Unite Couple

Tuesday afternoon nuptials at St. Raphael's Catholic Church in San Rafael united in marriage Belinda Holmes and Dennis J. Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Holmes are the bride's parents, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll Hayes. All are residents of San Rafael.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. S. B. Rowland of Sierra Vista, Ariz. Bridesmaids were Penelope Brody of San Francisco, Mmes. C. H. Exline of San Rafael, M. Scott McGowan of Greenbrae, W. A. Ingram of Davis and Robin Rivett of Sacramento.

James F. Hayes of Oakland, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Guests were ushered to their seats by Mike Devoy and George Wiegand of Mill Valley, Bill Bacigalupi and Chris Exline of San Rafael, Bill McClelland of Tempe, Ariz., and Bill Ingram of Davis.

Following a reception at Blessed Sacrament Church in Santa Venetia the couple left on a wedding trip to Carmel and Southern California. They will live in San Rafael.

Belinda is a graduate of Terra Linda High School, College of Marin and the University of California at Davis. She is employed by Pacific Telephone Company in Mill Valley.

A graduate of Marin Catholic High School and Sonoma State College, Dennis is a graduate student at Dominican College.

A Middle-Aged Sinner's New Years Resolutions

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
New Year's resolutions of a middle-aged sinner:

For the sake of my faithful and long-suffering wife, I will forego watching football on television during the months of February, March, April, May and June. During the remainder of the year, I will limit my indulgence in this pastime to Saturdays, Sundays and Monday nights, unless there happens to be a game on Friday night.

I will try to give up my favorite form of travel, namely, the ego trip. I will resist, insofar as I am able, the temptation to take advantage of a listener's credulity (or kindness) by subtly exaggerating my own status or achievements.

I will slow down, take life easier and get more rest, not merely for the sake of my physical health, but, more importantly, because I have learned it is well-nigh impossible to be kind, considerate and concerned with the needs of others when fatigue has driven me into a state of nervous irascibility.

I will spend more time walking in the woods and looking at wildflowers and listening to the music of waterfalls, for I believe that simple enjoyment of the beauty of nature is one of the surest ways to draw nigh unto its Creator.

I will build into my daily routine more fixed and inviolable times for prayer and meditation, because I have learned that it takes more than one act of surrender a day to keep my stubborn self-will in subjection to God's will. Knowing how brief and fleeting are the moments I can say, "Thy will be done," and honestly mean it, I will hand over the problem of reforming my character to God by offering daily the very realistic prayer of St. Francis: "O Lord, help me to WANT to love you."

I will not allow myself the emotional luxury of empty feelings. I will remember that there is no real compassion in "feeling sorry" for someone with troubles, unless that feeling is accompanied immediately by some concrete act of love, however inadequate it may be as a solution of the total problem.

I will endeavor to keep my nasty temper under control, even when somebody telephones me on a trivial matter during the supposedly-sacrosanct hours of early morning, when I am totally absorbed in trying to get my column written.

Even though it seems a great waste to deny young people the benefit of the vast store of wisdom I have accumulated over the years, I will offer counsel to people under 30 only when specifically requested to do so. I will not offer advice to people over 30 even if they ask for it, because I know they don't really want it.

I will not expect to keep these resolutions faithfully all year long, because I have already discovered how difficult it will be to live up to them without an occasional relapse. Somebody just called me on the telephone.

Evangelist Asks Editor To Kick Him

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Billy Graham, the evangelist, has invited the religion editor of the Cleveland Press to "kick me in the seat of the pants whenever you feel like it."

Graham, in a letter, thanked the editor, George R. Plagenz, for criticism in a recent column.

Plagenz accused Graham of "casting an ungracious slur on the poor," on a nationwide television broadcast in which the evangelist declared: "We had rats in our day too. The only difference was we killed our own rats. We didn't ask a government to do it for us."

Graham responded: "You really know how to hurt a fellow. The reason it hurts is because you are at least in part right. I will have to be more careful."

"So kick me in the seat of the pants whenever you feel like it—I need it sometimes," Graham said.

at the three-day "Citizens Conference on Priorities and Action for Children and Youth," sponsored by the National Committee on Children and Youth.

The conference was called partly as a follow-up to last year's White House Conference on Children.

Dinger, who served as chairman of the meeting of the Youth Involvement Group in which recommendations to the entire conference were formulated, said that "the entire thrust of the group" was to call for youth participation on the decision-making level, especially in those areas where the young person would be affected significantly. He mentioned activities involving government, church, education, industry and service clubs.

"Just as people who pay taxes want to be in on the vote when new bond issues are proposed, young people ought to be involved when decisions are made that affect their lives importantly," Dinger said, "and not only after the programs have been established."

Dinger and Ross T. Wilbur, a consultant in the Lutheran Council's Division of Welfare Services, represented the coun-

By DUSTON HARVEY
HAYWARD, Calif. (UPI)—The "Children of God" have been forcefully reminded that they are also the sons and daughters of man.

The Children, one of the larger sects in the youthful "Jesus movement," has come under fire recently from the parents of some of its 3,000 disciples living at 40 communes in Europe and North America.

The parents accused the elders of the fundamentalist Christian faith of using drugs, hypnosis and coercion to "brainwash" young followers into rejecting their families and giving up all their possessions.

In an effort to disprove the charges and counteract resultant bad publicity, the sect's elders sent their followers back home to their parents for the holidays.

"Evangelism is our business and the bad press is hurting our work among young people," explained Bruce Cunningham, the earnest 20-year-old leader of the sect's only commune in the San Francisco Bay Area in Hayward.

Cunningham and his wife live with two other married couples and 30 single young men and women in a small three-bedroom home in this suburban community 25 miles southeast of San Francisco.

Inside the single-story, pink stucco and frame house, a dozen disciples explained their belief in the imminent second coming of Christ to newsmen in evangelistic, scripture-studded terms.

The 18-to-28-year-old fundamentalists, most of them dropouts from the drug culture in San Francisco or Berkeley, appeared neither drugged nor hypnotized. But they willingly obeyed their leaders' instructions to return to their families for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays as the "will of God" despite the sect's belief they must give up their family ties to follow Christ.

This unquestioning following

of the sect's leaders, the surrender of all earthly possessions to their commune and the forsaking of their families have produced the strong parental reaction.

On the same day members of the Hayward commune were leaving for home, a young wife 400 miles to the south told the San Diego City Council that it should turn the sect out of town because it had "brainwashed" her husband into leaving her and a daughter and giving all his possessions to the group.

Mrs. Mona Eckel said her husband left her when she refused to join one of the two communes in San Diego with him. She instead joined a parents' organization which charges that the sect uses drugs and hypnosis to gain members.

William M. Rambur of Chula Vista, a San Diego suburb, organized a group called "Parents Committee to Free Our Sons and Daughters From the Children of God" after his 22-year-old daughter, Kay, dropped out of nursing school and joined the sect last summer.

Rambur, a retired naval officer, drove to a Children of God camp in Texas to see her. "We tried to get her to come home with us, but she told us, 'The Devil's in that car with you. I'm not getting into a car with the devil.'"

At a confrontation between parents and sect members in Seattle this fall, Kay told newsmen she later had to flee from her father at the Seattle-Tacoma Airport after she failed to convince him she wanted to stay with the Children of God.

The sect, which has filed a $1.1 million slander suit against Rambur's group and other similar parent organizations, has charged several times that disciples have been "kidnaped" by their families.

"They can't believe the fantastic work we are doing," said Cunningham, who is known in the sect as "Rekem." "They want a physical explanation for a spiritual happening. These people just don't like our brand of truth."

In the sparsely furnished and spotlessly clean house in Hayward, which the sect rented four months ago after leaving San Francisco, two neat-dressed girls sat face-to-face on wooden chairs, singing hymns as they played guitars.

The three married couples share two small bedrooms in the house, while a larger bedroom is used as a girls dorm and the living room as a boys dorm where the "children" throw down their sleeping bags at night.

The other women worked in the kitchen while three men outside repaired a van used to transport members from one commune to another.

A dozen of the youngsters had just left, sleeping bags on their backs, on a half-mile hike to an interstate freeway where they would start hitchhiking home. A 20-year-old New Jersey girl said she was traveling "on faith" when asked how she would get home.

"It's a journey of faith...a test," said Maacha, a 19-year-old whose parents sent her plane fare to Los Angeles. "It's a test of our faith in God. I'm really excited. I'm going to take the message to my parents and to my brothers and sisters."

Search For God Is Talk Theme

Edwin Bare will be first reader and Georgia Jordan, second reader at the first services of the New Year at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, San Rafael.

The lecture-sermon will emphasize the need for an intelligent approach to the search for God.

The services will begin at 9:30 and 11 a.m. at the church, 1618 Fifth Avenue, and are open to all.

Pageant Set At Holy Innocents

Holy Innocents' Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera will hold its 25th annual Epiphany service at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with a nativity pageant, candlelight procession and blessing of the congregation.

Nancy Westergaard will play the Virgin Mary and David Walraven will play Joseph in the pageant.

Following the pageant, a candlelight procession, with every member of the congregation carrying lanterns designed by Rick W. Thomas, will lead out of the church. A blessing then will be given by Rev. Tod W. Ewald.

Relief Continuing To Pakistani Refugees

GENEVA (LWF) — The Lutheran World Federation's Cooch Behar Refugee Service for East Pakistani refugees has continued without major disruption despite the India-Pakistan conflict, according to reports received here.

Dr. Yvonne von Stedingk, special services secretary for the LWF Department of World Service, reported that Olav Hodne, director of the refugee service, has not indicated any changes in the relief program developed since last March.

"His latest request for transfer of funds leads us to believe that the program is continuing generally on schedule," she said.

The LWF/WS executive reported that the full $1 million allocated from last March through the end of this year has now been transferred to CBRS.

Churches and donor agencies in Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Germany, Canada, the U.S. and Australia have provided the funds. Also, Dr. von Stedingk said, LWF/WS has received pledges of continued support of the program "at least at the current level."

At the present time, 10 camps have been provided for 170,000 evacuees into the Cooch Behar district of West Bengal and a supplementary feeding program has been available for uncounted thousands. CBRS also cooperates with the Indian Red Cross and UNICEF in the "Operation Life-Line" program for young children and new mothers.

The medical program has provided hospital facilities for 240 patients and includes out-

Charles Higgins To Sing At San Anselmo Church

Rev. Charles E. Higgins, an evangelist-singer, will appear Monday through Jan. 9 at the San Anselmo Church of the Nazarene, 1509 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo.

Services are set for 7:30 p.m. each night except Saturday and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Reverend Higgins began his work in Christianity in 1946 as a minister of music in Columbus, Ohio, then moved to Pasadena and once again served as minister of music.

In 1951, Reverend Higgins accepted a pastorate in Lindsay,

Tulare County, then became pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene in Honolulu.

He is a baritone soloist and also plays the piano and organ in his revival campaigns. He has traveled extensively and conducted a missionary tour that took him to Spain, Italy, Israel and Ethiopia.

During his pastoral work Reverend Higgins has held regular radio and television broadcasts and served as a member of the General Music Commission of the Church of the Nazarene from 1960 to 1964.

Lutherans Call Mental Facilities 'Deplorable'

WASHINGTON, D.C. (LC) — Conditions in many of this country's institutions for mentally disturbed children are so deplorable that a moratorium on all admissions was given serious consideration at a national conference here in early December, according to a Lutheran Council youth executive.

Ralph E. Dinger, director of the council's Office of National Youth Agency Relationships, said the proposal was voted down after long debate.

It was feared, he explained, that the disruption within families not equipped to handle a mentally handicapped child requiring institutional care, might be too great.

The conference urged instead that immediate action be taken to improve the institutions so that a moratorium would not be necessary, Dinger said.

The Lutheran youth executive emphasized, however, that the amount of consideration given the moratorium idea demonstrates the lengths to which this national conference was willing to go in order to "shake up society" sufficiently to create public demand for desperately-needed improvements.

Dinger and Ross T. Wilbur, a consultant in the Lutheran Council's Division of Welfare Services, represented the council at the three-day "Citizens Conference on Priorities and Action for Children and Youth," sponsored by the National Committee on Children and Youth.

The conference was called partly as a follow-up to last year's White House Conference on Children.
